thority, and serials control. Text/word processing and commercial database access are also planned. Tulsa has also contracted with Penn State to convert the library’s bibliographic records into MARC-standard machine-readable form within one year. After conversion the data will be transferred and maintained on the Tulsa campus as LIAS-TU, driven by Honeywell equipment located in the university’s Computer Center. ■ ■

Publications

NOTICES

• Buy Books Where—Sell Books Where, by Ruth E. Robinson (250 pages, 4th ed., 1983), contains over 7,000 entries representing the collecting specialties of more than 1,700 booksellers in the United States. The new edition identifies specialists as strictly buyers or strictly sellers of particular subject categories. Copies may be obtained for $21.50 from Ruth E. Robinson Books, Route 7 Box 162A, Morgantown, WV 26505.

• Collection Security in ARL Libraries, SPEC Kit #100 (94 pages, January 1984), examines the policies, procedures, and security systems used by ARL libraries to prevent theft. Included are 10 policy and procedures documents, two task force reports, and a selective bibliography. SPEC kits are available by subscription from the SPEC Center, Office of Management Studies, ARL, 1527 New Hampshire Ave., N.W., Washington, DC 20036. Individual kits are available for $15 prepaid.

• The 1984 Directory of Resources for Technology in Education has been published by the Technology Learning Center at the Far West Laboratory for Educational Research and Development. It provides information about national and state associations, resource organizations, state departments of education, computer camps, periodicals, databases, electronic bulletin boards, hardware companies, summer institutes, conferences, degree programs, and funding sources. Copies may be ordered for $12.95 paperback or $19.95 hard cover from the Order Department, Far West Laboratory, 1855 Folsom St., San Francisco, CA 94103.

• Document Delivery in the United States, a report on the methods that libraries use to obtain materials undertaken by Information Systems Consultants, Inc., has been issued by the Council on Library Resources. The report includes data on document suppliers, the interlibrary loan system, use of delivery options, and electronic document delivery. The study was commissioned under CLR's Information Delivery Services Program, in part as a response to the Library of Congress Network Advisory Committee's 1982 recommendation for a nationwide study of document delivery activities. Information came from an extensive literature review, over 100 questionnaire responses from libraries and document services, and telephone interviews with major library and commercial suppliers. The report identifies four likely trends for document delivery services over the next five years if libraries and consortia do not engage in coordinated planning for improvements. Copies are available for $5 (prepayment required) from the Council on Library Resources, 1785 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington, DC 20036.

•The Guide to Swedish-American Archival and Manuscript Sources in the United States, edited by Wesley M. Westerberg (600 pages, 1983), lists personal papers, organizational records, diaries, histories and other material going back to the 1600s when the first Swedes arrived. It is the result of a two-year inventory project for which the National Endowment for the Humanities provided major funding. There are 3,090 sources from 129 depositories in 30 states and the District of Columbia. Copies of the guide are available for $20 plus postage from the Swedish-American Historical Society, 5125 N. Spaulding, Chicago, IL 60625.

•Library Department Criteria for Promotion, a document of the City College Library Faculty, City University of New York, may be of use to administrators developing or revising their own policies. Libraries with written promotional criteria are encouraged to send a copy in exchange. Otherwise, single copies will be sent upon request (when accompanied by an SASE) from Ann K. Randall, Chief Librarian, City College of CUNY, 5/333 North Academic Center, New York, NY 10031.

•Mysterious America, by Loren Coleman (301 pages, January 1984), is a compilation of folklore and anomalous happenings in the United States and Canada. An excellent regional bibliography supplements the text, which covers monsters, phantoms, haunts, and out-of-place animals. Five appendices list reoccurring "spook lights," erratic crocodilians, phantom ships, devil's place names, and American lake and river monsters. Copies may be ordered for $9.95 from Faber and Faber, Inc., 39 Thompson St., Winchester, MA 01890. ISBN 0-571-12524-7.

•A Preservation Poster that informs sipping and snacking library users about the dangers of food and drink to library collections is available for $5 from the University of Texas Libraries. Printed in black and ivory on an orange background, the 22x28-inch poster may be ordered from Publications, The General Libraries, University of Texas at Austin, P.O. Box P, Austin, TX 78712.

•Public/Private Sector Interactions: The Implications for Networking (48 pages, 1983) has been issued as Network Planning Paper number 8 by the

CALENDAR

March

22-23—1984: "George Orwell's 1984: The Novel and Contemporary Issues," a conference co-sponsored by the Vigo County Public Library and Indiana State University's Cunningham Memorial Library, Terre Haute, Indiana. In addition to a showing of the film 1984, there will be four programs devoted to literary themes, news media manipulation, technology and information dissemination, and freedom of information. Speakers will include Herbert White, Lawrence J. McCrank, Barbara Markuson, and Judy Krug. Contact: Elaine Kleiner, Department of English, Indiana State University, Terre Haute, IN 47809.

April

16—Networks: In celebration of National Library Week, Eastern Illinois University will present "From Our Past: Towards 2000," a symposium featuring the perspectives of network administrators, at the Bismarck Hotel, 171 Randolph St., Chicago. Speakers will be: J. Michael Bruer (CLASS), James H. Kennedy (AMIGOS), Frederick G. Kilgour (OCLC), John Linford (NE-LINET), Alphonse F. Trezza (NCLIS), and Alice Wilcox (MINITEX). Fees: $30 for Illinois residents, $40 for non-residents, $20 for library science students. Contact: Symposium, Office of the Dean of Library Services, Eastern Illinois University, Charleston, IL 61920; (217) 581-6061.

May

4—Online Searching: "Online Literature Searching," a course offered by the Drexel University...