ASSISTANT DIRECTOR, LIBRARY PROGRAMS

Mount Sinai School of Medicine

A dynamic, creative, and flexible librarian is needed to provide leadership and direction of the Levy Library. In this newly created position, reporting to the Assistant Dean for Information Resources and Systems, the successful candidate will be responsible for managing library operations including access, reference, education, and technical services. Library programs are expanding in parallel with the growth of the Mount Sinai School of Medicine and the implementation of a new curriculum in the year 2000. A four-year longitudinal library science/medical informatics program needs to be developed to integrate with the new curriculum. Other growing areas include licensing of electronic resources for Mount Sinai and members of the Mount Sinai-NYU Health System and participation in institution-wide evidence-based medicine initiatives. Teaching programs cover medical students, house staff, faculty, attending staff, and members of the Alumni Association.

The Assistant Director, Library Programs will be one of three Assistant Directors in an integrated information services unit that includes academic computing, institutional web development, computer-based education design and support, and the Medical Center archives. The person holding the position will help set direction for the future in conjunction with major research, clinical practice, and educational initiatives underway at Mount Sinai.

Requirements include: MLS from an ALA-accredited school and a minimum of seven years of progressively responsible experience in a medical or academic library. Supervisory experience required. Demonstrated leadership skills mandatory. Experience in management, developing educational programs, creative use of technology, and participation in professional activities highly desirable. The person who fills this position must have a proactive approach and positive attitude and the ability to work effectively in a fast-paced and rapidly changing environment.

Located in Manhattan, the Mount Sinai School of Medicine is internationally recognized for groundbreaking clinical and basic science research and innovative approaches to medical education. Mount Sinai leadership in scientific investigation is illustrated by its receipt during FY98 of $116.6 million in public and private research funding, including $79.7 million in NIH grants, placing it in the top tier of the nation's 125 medical schools. Mount Sinai ranks 9th in the percentage of graduates who go on to faculty positions in medical schools across the country. Mount Sinai School of Medicine also is known for unique educational programs such as the Humanities in Medicine program that creates opportunities for liberal arts students to pursue medical school, and instructional innovations like the Morchand Center, the nation's largest program teaching students and physicians with "standardized patients" to become not only highly skilled, but compassionate caregivers. Long dedicated to improving its community, the School extends its boundaries to work with the East Harlem community to pair physician/scientists and medical students with at-risk high school students interested in math and science.

Mount Sinai School of Medicine offers an excellent salary. Send resume, names of at least three references, and a sample of expository writing to:

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
Historic New Orleans Collection

The Kemper and Leila Williams Foundation, d/b/a The Historic New Orleans Collection (THNOC), seeks a dynamic, growth-oriented, highly motivated Executive Director, who will have responsibility for all functions and personnel (40 full-time equivalents) of THNOC and who will resort directly to its five-person board.

THNOC, a museum/research center dedicated to the history of Louisiana and New Orleans, is a well-endowed private operating foundation that has been in existence for over 30 years and currently has a $5 million annual operating and capital budget. THNOC’s collection consists of maps, documents, books, furniture, art, and objects reflecting the history of Louisiana, and especially New Orleans.

The collection is housed in a complex of beautifully restored buildings located primarily in New Orleans’ French Quarter and is open to the public for research, viewing of exhibitions, and tours of its house museum. THNOC also sponsors historical symposia and publications, alone and in conjunction with others.

The applicant should have a doctorate degree (or equivalent) and at least 10 years’ experience in an academic, museum, or history-related endeavor including administrative and budgeting responsibilities. The applicant must have the demonstrated abilities and skills to enhance the Collection by acquisition and donation and to build upon and expand the successful existing programs to achieve national and international repute for the institution.

The Executive Director presents THNOC through writings and public appearances, develops relationships with historical and preservation organizations and serves on committees of organizations, consistent with THNOC’s mission. Knowledge of Louisiana/New Orleans history is preferable. It is anticipated that the successful candidate will command a base salary in excess of $100,000, plus generous benefits.

Nominations are welcomed. Applications must be received no later than August 31, 1999. THNOC reserves the right to terminate or extend the search at its discretion. An application shall consist of a cover letter, resume, and three references (including addresses, phone numbers, and fax numbers). Applications, or requests for additional information, should be addressed to:

ASSOCIATE UNIVERSITY LIBRARIAN, INFORMATION AND RESEARCH SERVICES
University of California, Santa Barbara

The University of California, Santa Barbara, one of the nine campuses of the University of California system, is seeking an Associate University Librarian, Information and Research Services. UC, Santa Barbara occupies a picturesque 989-acre palm and eucalyptus lined plateau overlooking the Pacific Ocean. UCSS joined the University of California system in 1944. It is ranked as a category I research university by the Carnegie Commission, and is an elected member of the Association of American Universities. Offering a full range of undergraduate and graduate degrees, the campus serves 18,000 students and has 900 full time faculty, including many members of leading academic societies as well as fellows and winners of national academic honors. The library is a member of the Association of Research Libraries, the Center for Research Libraries, and the Online Computer Library Center. The library is also a participant in the California Digital Library and a recipient of research grants from government and other sources.

RESPONSIBILITIES: The AUL, Information and Research Services serves as a member of the Library Executive Committee reporting directly to the University Librarian. The AUL has line responsibility and provides leadership and management support for Reference and Instruction Services, Special Collections, Access Services Science and Engineering Library Map and Imagery Laboratory, and the Arts Library. The Division of Information and Research Services includes approximately 27 academic librarians and ES staff employees.

The AUL chairs the Information and Research Services Group responsible for the planning, Policy-making, program direction, and the development and evaluation of public and research services for the library system. The incumbent has responsibility for continually improving services, providing leadership in the introduction of new services, and adapting policies and procedures in response to meeting the evolving needs of the information services environment. The incumbent coordinates budget and space planning for the Information & Research Services Group, which includes research grants, and off campus storage facilities. As the UCSE library moves through a period of organizational development this position will be expected to play a library-wide role in integrating and evaluating library services.

The incumbent works with the librarians and staff to design and develop programs and services that support the teaching and research activities of faculty, students, and staff. She also serves as a member of the University of California, Heads of Public Services, and is actively involved with the California Digital Library, a collaborative effort responsible for building shared digital collections and access services to meet the research needs of all UC campuses.

QUALIFICATIONS: MLS from an ALA-accredited program and substantial experience in public service positions. Demonstrated successful administrative and management experience with diverse user service units. Demonstrated decision making and planning skills are required. A commitment to service is essential. The ability to establish and maintain effective working relationships with colleagues, faculty, and staff in a complex and rapidly changing environment. Excellent oral, written, and interpersonal communication skills. Additional desirable qualifications include: knowledge of Special Collections and consortial issues; awareness of trends in electronic and digital resources and the impact of technology on libraries as well as experience with current and developing information services; record of leadership and achievement in the profession and a commitment to fostering the professional development of others; and a strong commitment to diversity.

HIRING RANGE: $65,000 to $90,000 based on qualifications and experience. Consideration of applications begins August 15, 1999, and continue until the position is filled.

An equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.
The Special Collections of Washington University Libraries in St. Louis is seeking a talented, dynamic, creative, service-oriented individual to serve as Curator, Modern Literature Collection Manuscripts. The Special Collections Department is made up of three units (Rare Books, Manuscripts, and University Archives) and is a partner in funding the Program for the Illustrated Book, including a printing studio, with the School of Art. Collaborative efforts with University faculty are a high priority; in addition, the successful candidate will be participating in planning for a new Special Collections facility. Special Collections houses approximately 50,000 printed volumes of rare books and modern literature, and an extensive collection of manuscripts of more than 75 major British and American writers of the 19th and 20th centuries. Of particular note in the modern literature collection are collections for Samuel Beckett, James Merrill, and May Swenson, and St. Louis authors Howard Nemerov, William Gass, Stanley Elkin, Donald Finkel, Mona Van Duyn, Constance Urdang, and John Morris. The URL for the department web site is: http://library.wustl.edu/Units/Spec.

RESPONSIBILITIES: The Curator is responsible for building, promoting, and administering the Modern Literature Collection. With the Head of Special Collections, the Curator will plan for the maintenance of existing research collections and help establish new directions for the Modern Literature Collection. The Curator is responsible for developing and providing finding aids and works with other department staff to ensure that all users’ needs are met, and serves as Acting Head of Special Collections in the absence of the Head. The Curator also has collection development responsibilities to the American literature portion of the circulating collection in Olin Library. In addition, the Curator is expected to actively participate in planning and carrying out department outreach activities, including lectures, symposia, and readings sponsored by Special Collections.

EDUCATION QUALIFICATIONS: A. Master’s degree is required, either MLS from an ALA-accredited school or MA in English or Comparative Literature; prefer both. Subject expertise in contemporary American and British literature. Evidence of written and oral communication skills. Experience: Special Collections experience required. Manuscript reference experience helpful. Collection development experience preferred. Knowledge of manuscript cataloging procedures preferred. Experience with automated procedures, including AMC formats, HTML, and EAD, desirable. Salary range: $32,000-$39,000.

DEAN OF LIBRARIES

University of Memphis

The University of Memphis invites nominations and applications for a visionary and energetic Dean of Libraries. Central to the academic and research environment is the University's libraries system, anchored by the beautiful $26.5 million Ned R. McWherter Library, which opened in 1994. The Dean is the chief administrative and academic officer of the University Libraries and reports directly to the Provost. Primary responsibilities are to assure that library system personnel work closely with faculty, students, and administrative personnel to integrate the library services with all of the University's academic and research activities. The Dean serves as chief advocate and spokesperson for the libraries and spearheads their teaching, research, and public service missions. The Dean is responsible for formulating policies, planning strategic decisions, budgeting, allocating resources, and supervising the faculty and staff.

The University is committed to its libraries system, which has an annual budget of almost $6 million, and a faculty and staff of 104. The libraries contain more than 1 million print volumes, 2.7 million pieces of microformat, more than 8 million pieces of archival materials, 50 licensed databases, 200 federal databases, and full-text Internet access. The Library is a Government Publications Department of the U.S. Government Regional Federal Documents Depository for the State of Tennessee, and serves as a depository for all State of Tennessee documents. The McWherter Library opened as a state-of-the-art facility with 152 individual study rooms, 22 group study rooms, 221 computer work stations, and wiring for 300 more.

Located in a beautiful residential area of Memphis, Tennessee, the University of Memphis provides innovative educational services for more than 20,000 undergraduate and graduate students and fosters diverse research and outreach opportunities. The University of Memphis Libraries System includes the McWherter Library and five branch libraries: Audiology and Speech, Language Pathology, Chemistry, Mathematical Sciences, Music, and Earth Sciences. It provides services to the Graduate School, the Humphreys School of Law, the University College, the Loewenberg School of Nursing, the School of Audiology and Speech-Language Pathology, and five colleges that offer undergraduate and graduate programs including the College of Arts and Sciences, Fogelman College of Business and Economics, the College of Communications and Fine Arts, College of Education, and the Herff College of Engineering.

For more information, visit the University website at www.memphis.edu.

The successful candidate for the Dean's position must hold a master's degree in library science from an ALA-accredited institution, with additional advanced degree(s) preferred. Critical is a vision to identify and develop state-of-the-art information technologies and integrate these with traditional library collections and services. The Dean should possess excellent oral and written communication skills. The successful candidate should have a record of progressively responsible administrative experience in an academic or research library, with skills in setting priorities and long-range goals. The applicant should have an outstanding academic record that would warrant appointment as a full professor.

Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications. Review of applications will begin October 1, 1999 and will continue until the position is filled. The anticipated start date for the successful applicant is the first quarter of 2000. The University is committed to Affirmative Action and encourages applications from women and minority candidates. Applicants should send a letter describing their qualifications and relating them to the U of M position, a curriculum vitae, and the names, addresses, telephone numbers, and e-mail addresses of five current references to:

CHAPMAN UNIVERSITY
University Librarian

Chapman University seeks an energetic and visionary leader to serve as University Librarian. This position offers an opportunity for a talented library professional with strong academic interests, demonstrated skill in library administration and experience in fund raising to work with the university community in shaping the library for a successful and rapidly strengthening university of the twenty-first century. The successful candidate, in addition to directing traditional library services and collections, will have the opportunity to initiate ambitious programs to improve services, collections and facilities, and to continue the university’s advances in integrating state-of-the-art information technologies in its library system. The new University Librarian, who will report directly to the Provost, can expect strong administrative support for initiatives to improve the library, as evidenced by the current capital campaign giving the library the highest fund raising priority.

Chapman, an independent, comprehensive university offering undergraduate, masters and doctoral degree programs, is the premiere independent alternative to public institutions in Orange County, CA. The university, with a strong track record of planned growth while maintaining an excellent academic reputation, is an exciting, dynamic environment where people of talent, vision and integrity are able to contribute substantively to the future of the institution. The Orange campus located 30 miles southeast of Los Angeles in a culturally diverse community, serves approximately 2500 undergraduate and 1000 graduate students, while twenty Academic Centers throughout the western U.S. serve approximately 3500 students primarily in professional graduate programs.

Qualifications: A.L.A. accredited M.L.S. and master’s degree in an academic discipline is required; Ph.D. preferred. Also required: demonstrated experience in academic library administration and the use of information systems in support of library functions. Recommended: experience providing library support to a diverse student body, a significant fund-raising record, including extra-mural grants, and evident ability to articulate a coherent vision of an academic library to a wide audience. The successful candidate will demonstrate exceptional communication skills, experience in collection development and the ability to respond to student and faculty needs in a growing university.

Responsibilities: The University Librarian provides leadership, supervision and budgetary oversight in all aspects of the university library, including (i) developing, communicating and implementing a vision of the library and a strategic plan for the library within the context of the university’s strategic plan, (ii) acquiring resources, including extra-mural grant writing and private fund raising, needed to support library programs and facilities, (iii) planning, with active engagement of the faculty, for curricular and programmatic needs, (iv) coordinating efforts with the Office of Academic Computing to meet the information technological needs of students and faculty, (v) developing special collections, (vi) staffing of the library, (vii) overseeing an extensive inter-campus library information systems network.

Applications and nominations: Nominations are welcome. Review of candidates will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled.

DEAN OF UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES
Clarion University of Pennsylvania

Clarion University of Pennsylvania invites applications for the position of Dean of University Libraries. Committed to a strong teaching mission complemented by research and service, Clarion University takes pride in the accomplishments of its students who graduate from programs recognized for quality and earning the most prestigious accreditation including AACSB, ALA, AOTA, ASHA, NASM, NCATE, and NLN. Located in scenic northwestern Pennsylvania, the university is one of fourteen in the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education and enrolls approximately 5900 students who attend classes on two main campuses and at various distance education sites. Services from the University Libraries are coordinated through the Carlson Library on the Clarion campus and the Suhr Library on the Venango campus 30 miles away. The University Libraries employ 27 full time faculty and staff who provide an extremely active program of library instruction and information support services and who work cooperatively with university faculty to develop, maintain, and make accessible collections of 350,000 monographs, 700 hard copy serials, and over 7000 full-text journals. University faculty and staff are represented by collective bargaining agreements.

The Dean has overall responsibility for the collections, programs, and services of the libraries. Because both Computing Services and the Libraries report to Academic Affairs, these units have exceptional opportunities to collaborate in providing the campus with leadership in the development and implementation of information services supporting academic programs, distance education, and instructional technologies for all university programs. The position reports to the Provost, serves on the Council of Deans, and represents the Libraries at the State System level.

Required: At least five years of recent successful upper-level administrative experience in libraries (academic preferred), supported by strong academic credentials, including an ALA-accredited MLS or foreign equivalent; (a doctorate in a library/information science or related field is strongly preferred but not required). Documented professional involvement; experience in visioning and implementing technology and innovative initiatives in libraries and in managing personnel and budgets; proven leadership, communication, planning, and consensus building skills; demonstrated commitment to shared decision making and governance; demonstrated supervisory experience; ability to be an articulate advocate and spokesperson for the libraries; experience in attracting financial and other support for libraries; commitment to expanding diversity in the university community; and completion of a successful interview.

Desired: Experience in library renovation and/or construction projects.

Clarion University is building a diverse academic community and encourages people of color, women, veterans and persons with disabilities to apply.

Salary and benefits are competitive. Candidates should send a letter of application articulating their philosophy of library service and how they view their role in relation to university students and faculty, of the library, technological innovation, and the university's Computing Services division. Also supply a vita and names, addresses (including e-mail) and telephone numbers of three references to:

DEAN OF THE SCHOOL OF INFORMATION STUDIES

State University of New York at Buffalo

Applications and nominations are sought for the position of Dean of the School of Information Studies at the State University of New York at Buffalo, the only public member of the Association of American Universities (AAU) in New York and New England. The University at Buffalo is the largest and most comprehensive institution in the SUNY system, with an enrollment of over 25,000 students.

The School of Information Studies is a new academic unit, created through a merger of the School of Information and Library Studies, and the Department of Communication. The mission of the new School is to undertake teaching, research, and service dealing with the human aspects of information transfer at the personal, organizational, and societal levels. As information technology reshapes human institutions, the School of Information Studies will focus on the processes of seeking, finding, organizing, evaluating, and communicating information and knowledge. The founding Dean of the new School is expected to play a key role in defining and expanding its program.

Currently the School of Information Studies has 20 faculty. The School now offers a Bachelor of Arts in Communication, strong degree programs leading to the Master of Library Science and the Master of Arts, and a Ph.D. degree in Communication. A proposal is currently pending to add a Ph.D. in Information and Library Science. The School is expected to grow and add faculty as student demand increases. Areas where new program initiatives may emerge include: studying information technology as a social force; developing information services for people of all ages; investigating the changing meaning of community; understanding the new roles of libraries and information centers; studying the evolution of information policy in fields such as censorship, privacy, intellectual property, and information delivery systems; the organization of information; and the management of information service organizations. The School is expected to become involved with interdisciplinary curricular collaboration and shared research agendas affecting many schools and departments in the University, including Education, Geography, Design, Computer Science and Engineering, English, Cognitive Science, and the Arts. As the founding dean of the college, a leader is sought who has a broad conception of the role of Information Studies.

The School of Information Studies has, or participates in, several research centers. These centers include the Center for Applied Research in Library and Information Science, the Center for Computational Research (UB has one of the largest supercomputing facilities in the country), the Cognitive Science Center, and Integrated Digital Explorations in the Arts and Sciences (IDEAS). The University is also one of three universities participating in the National Center for Geographic Information and Analysis (NCGIA), and offers a multidisciplinary Integrative Graduate Education and Research Training Program in Geographic Information Science.

Qualifications: The successful candidate must possess an earned doctorate in a field relevant to the mission of the School of Information Studies, as well as experience or demonstrated potential in administration and a record of scholarship and teaching qualifying for an academic appointment with tenure at the rank of professor, management experience preferred. The Dean of SIS should have excellent communications skills; dynamic leadership abilities; and the vision to understand and anticipate the effects of information technology on society. The Dean should also demonstrate entrepreneurial ability, commitment to interdisciplinary thought and action, and a capacity to create productive partnerships across disciplinary and organizational boundaries.

Applications or Nominations: Candidates should submit a letter of application, a complete, up-to-date curriculum vitae, and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers, and Email addresses of five references. The Committee encourages letters of nomination.

The deadline for receipt of applications is September 15, 1999. Applications and nominations should be sent to:
