ELECTRONIC/DIGITAL RESOURCES
BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL

The Milton S. Eisenhower Library is launching an expanded program to digitize, network, and provide bibliographic control for a wide variety of textual materials and images. The Cataloging Department is responsible for cataloging materials in all formats and is actively engaged in activities that enhance intellectual access to electronic resources. The Library is seeking an experienced professional cataloger, familiar with a variety of electronic formats and Internet resources, who can provide leadership in developing our bibliographic control program for electronic resources.

Reporting to the Head of Cataloging, the incumbent will work with staff from the Computer-Based Resources and Services Team/Digital Knowledge Center, the Resource Services Department, and the Library Systems Office to develop plans and methods for providing appropriate intellectual access to digital resources added to the Library's collections, to resources locally digitized, and to those made available through the campus network. The successful candidate for this position will have demonstrated ability to work in a changing environment where responsibilities will evolve in response to development opportunities. The Eisenhower Library prizes initiative, creativity, professionalism, and teamwork.

MAJOR RESPONSIBILITIES:

• Coordinate the creation of authoritative headings and HTML mark-up of online table of contents for Project Muse, the Johns Hopkins University electronic publishing initiative;
• Perform original cataloging of materials in a variety of formats;
• Collaborate with library staff in mapping metadata from external resources to accepted standards and formats;
• Collaborate with library staff in developing the organizing principles and logical arrangement of the library's Web home pages;
• Work cooperatively with all areas of library staff to implement a new integrated library system and to define indexing needs for the library's virtual catalog of Z39.50 resources;
• Participate in local and national discussions relating to providing bibliographic access to electronic resources through professional development and service activities.

QUALIFICATIONS: MLS from an ALA-accredited library school; three years original cataloging experience; knowledge of standards relating to metadata, cataloging electronic resources, and full-text retrieval; knowledge of AACR2r, LC Subject Headings, USMARC formats, HTML, SGML, TEI, Z39.50; reading knowledge of at least two foreign languages; experience with computer applications in libraries including a local automated system; familiarity with the bibliographic utilities; strong communication, organizational, and training skills; ability to write and implement procedures; demonstrated problem-solving skills; flexible; ability to prioritize work to ensure that departmental and library goals are realized; ability to work independently as well as part of a team. Previous project management and supervisory experience desired.

The starting salary range is $33,000 - $41,950 depending upon experience and education.

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington invites applications and nominations for the position of University Librarian. The position reports to the provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs and provides planning and policy leadership for the university’s print and electronic informational resources, oversight of 13 librarians and 23 support staff, and administration of an annual budget in excess of $2.5 million. The Librarian also serves on the Director’s Council, Dean’s Council, and UNCW Planning Committee, as well as the system-wide University Library Advisory Council.

A 128,000-square-foot facility, the William Madison Randall Library contains more than 400,000 hardbound volumes, subscribes to more than 5,000 serial titles, maintains extensive journal backfiles in bound volumes and microformat, as well as a large collection of audiovisuals in a variety of formats, and is a full depository for all North Carolina documents and a partial depository for United States government publications. Connected to a high-speed fiber optic campus data network, the library provides access to the Internet and is a member of a three-campus consortium designed to facilitate resource sharing and document delivery. Along with libraries at its sister institutions, it is currently defining its role in new statewide initiatives to increase distance learning, off-campus sites, and community outreach at the 16 campuses of The University of North Carolina.

A young, dynamic, and growing regional university committed to total quality, UNC-Wilmington currently enrolls more than 8,600 undergraduate and graduate students in arts and sciences, business, education, and nursing. Its location in an historic Atlantic seaport in southeastern North Carolina offers an outstanding quality of life with many natural and cultural amenities.

The successful candidate will have a demonstrated record of leadership and management in advancing innovative programs that respond to a changing technological and information environment, an understanding of the instructional and scholarly needs of students and faculty in a regional university setting, strong interpersonal and communication skills, and the ability to serve effectively as an advocate and spokesperson for the library’s educational mission. Minimal qualifications include an ALA-accredited MLS degree, and eight years of professional experience in an academic library, including five years of upper-level management experience. Other qualifications that may be considered include a second master’s degree in another subject field, evidence of ongoing professional development, and experience in library fund-raising.

For priority consideration, applications and nominations should be submitted by January 1, 1997. The position will remain open until filled, with an expected appointment effective July 1, 1997. Salary is competitive. Applicants should submit a letter of application, a current resume, and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of at least three professional references to the following:

DEAN OF UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES

Illinois State University

Illinois State University is seeking a forward-seeking and experienced leader to guide its library and information services into the next century.

Illinois State University, founded in 1857 as the first public institution of higher learning in Illinois, is a multi-purpose University with over 19,000 students and a full-time faculty of approximately 700. Academic programs and courses are offered in thirty-five departments organized into five colleges with master’s degree programs in most fields and doctoral degree programs in biological sciences, school psychology, curriculum and instruction, education administration and foundations, special education, English, history, and mathematics education. The University is located in Bloomington-Normal, a community of 100,000 people situated halfway between Chicago and St. Louis.

In support of Illinois State University’s primary mission as the premier undergraduate institution in Illinois, Milner Library provides the central library facility for the University community, with a staff of 110, including thirty-four faculty, over 1.3 million volumes, and an annual budget of nearly $6 million. The Library is embarking on development of a campus library and information services program utilizing a campus fiber optic network and the statewide cooperative union catalog.

RESPONSIBILITIES: The Dean of University Libraries reports directly to the University’s chief academic officer, the Vice President and Provost meets with the Provost’s Advisory Council and other appropriate academic and administrative councils. The Dean of University Libraries has administrative responsibility for library-wide planning and policy direction: for centralized library services such as budget, personnel, systems development, and information services; and for fundraising initiatives. The Dean of University Libraries plays a university-wide leadership role in the development and implementation of information technologies, and represents Milner Library within the University and throughout the larger library and higher education communities.

QUALIFICATIONS: An earned doctorate and an ALA-accredited MLS are preferred. The candidate should possess a minimum of five years of progressively responsible administrative experience in a medium to large academic library, and a strong record of professional participation and scholarship. Candidates must also demonstrate a clear understanding of the evolving role of the academic research library, and provide evidence of strong and innovative leadership skills in a shared decision-making environment. Candidates must have excellent communication skills and be able to establish and maintain effective relationships with University administrators, faculty, staff, students, and the extended community.

SALARY, RANK, AND NOMINATION/APPLICATION PROCEDURE: Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications. Rank will be associate or full professor, and academic tenure upon appointment is possible. Candidates are required to send a curriculum vitae: a letter of application outlining appropriate experiences; and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of at least three references. While the starting date will be not later than July 1, 1997, an earlier starting date is preferred. The search will remain open until the position is filled. unicorn It is possible, right now, for you to provide your clients and patrons with the absolute finest in library services and support—and extend those services around the world. It's an incredible capability that comes standard with Unicorn, the world's most powerful library automation system. Unicorn was created in 1982 by SIRSI. From the beginning, the right decisions were made to ensure that Unicorn users would always be able to meet change head-on. UNIX™ would be the operating platform. Client/server would provide the architecture. Unicorn would be the perfect blend of power, versatility and adaptability. These early decisions are the reasons why Unicorn is today's continuous source for technological breakthroughs. SIRSI is the only vendor offering complete public and staff functionality for MS-Windows™ and Macintosh™ clients. SIRSI's award-winning WebCat™ is the first product to tap the Web's potential for delivering library catalogs and other Z39.50 databases to patrons around the world. Today, strategic alliances with customers such as Carnegie Mellon and other industry partners ensure that Unicorn and other SIRSI products continue to lead the industry. Tomorrow, there will be new breakthroughs. And Unicorn users will be the first to reap the rewards.
