Guidelines regarding thefts in libraries

A draft

by The Security Committee of ACRL’s Rare Books and Manuscript Section

Section I. Preventing Library Theft

A. Appoint a Library Security Officer (LSO)

The LSO should be given authority by the library and the parent institution to act on their behalf while working with the institution’s legal counsel and security force. Consult Section II of the “ACRL Guidelines for the Security of Rare Books, Manuscripts, and Other Special Collections” for a fuller description of the LSO’s role, available from the ACRL office and published in C&RL News 60,9 (1999); see also the RBMS Web site/Guidelines.

B. Form a Security Planning Group

A Security Planning Group, made up of the LSO and other appropriate personnel, will be responsible for developing a security plan to prevent theft and a detailed plan of action to follow when a theft is discovered. The plan may be a part of the institution’s disaster plan or constitute a separate plan. The plans should not be public documents (e.g., they should not be posted on a Web site), but accessible only to appropriate library and institutional personnel.

C. Communicate with the public relations department

Establish a working relationship with the institution’s public relations office so that timely and accurate announcements can be made to the press when a theft is discovered.

D. Communicate with law enforcement agencies

Establish contact and foster good working relations with law enforcement agencies—institutional, local, state, and/or federal—and determine which of them has original jurisdiction over the library (e.g., campus security, local or state police, etc.) and under which circumstances they should be called. The library should maintain a list of contacts in each level of law enforcement and discuss the plan of action with each. (See Appendix I for “Networking Resources Directory for Protection and Recovery.”) The FBI, as well as U.S. Customs or Interpol, might become involved if stolen items are suspected of being smuggled into or out of the country.

E. Work for institutional and legislative support

1. Work with the library’s institutional administration to ensure their support for the prosecution of thieves. This support may range from the collection of evidence, which would be shared with prosecutors, to direct participation with the prosecution in preparation for and during the trial.

2. Work with appropriate institutional, local, and state groups to lobby for strengthening of state laws regarding library thefts and for diligent prosecution of such crimes. (See Appendix II for “Draft of Model Legislation: Theft and Mutilation of Library Materials.”)
History of the guidelines

The last revision of the “ACRL Guidelines Regarding Thefts in Libraries” was published in draft form in C&RL News 55, 5 (1994) and approved in June of that year. Just prior to the 1999 ALA Annual Conference, the ACRL Standards and Accreditation Committee and the RBMS Executive Committee asked the RBMS Security Committee to notify them of whether the guidelines required revision.

After a review and discussion of the guidelines at the Security Committee’s 1999 Annual Conference meeting, both the ACRL Standards and Accreditation Committee and the RBMS Executive Committee were notified that the guidelines would be revised. The guidelines were further discussed and revised at the 2000 Midwinter meeting and at the 2000 Annual Conference. In the fall of 2000, a draft of the revision was mounted on the RBMS Web site. At the 2001 Midwinter meeting, additional changes were proposed at an open hearing, which were discussed and evaluated at the Security Committee’s meeting. Those recommendations that the committee decided should be incorporated into the guidelines are reflected in the document published below.

These guidelines are available on the Web at http://www.ala.org/acrl/guides/theftdrft.html.

F. Report to library- and book and manuscript-related groups

1. Inform the local rare book, manuscript, and second-hand book sellers of the library’s collecting areas and establish a procedure for quickly informing them of any theft that has occurred in your library. Thieves sometimes try to sell stolen property quickly, and sellers with knowledge of the library’s collections can recognize, or at least be suspicious of, these genres of materials when they are offered.

2. Report the name of the LSO to the designated member of the RBMS Security Committee. Keep this person informed if successive LSOs are appointed.

3. Establish liaisons with appropriate Internet electronic mailing lists and national stolen and missing book databases (see Appendix I for “Networking Resources Directory for Protection and Recovery”) so that thefts can be reported immediately upon discovery.

G. Know and implement preventive security measures in the library

1. Implement the “ACRL Guidelines for the Security of Rare Book, Manuscript, and Other Special Collections,” available from the ACRL office and published in C&RL News (see RBMS Web site/Guidelines).

2. Assure that a unique ownership mark appears on all of the library’s holdings; this will provide proof that materials, if stolen, belong to the library. RBMS strongly advocates the implementation of its marking guidelines for rare materials (see “ACRL Guidelines for the Security of Rare Book, Manuscript, and Other Special Collections,” Appendix I). RBMS also strongly advocates describing distinctive characteristics of individual copies in cataloging notes as another means of identifying appropriate items.

3. When providing complete catalog records at the point of receipt is not possible, some form of ownership record, however brief, is recommended. It should contain a brief author/title statement and a description of at least several copy-specific features (e.g., binding, marks of previous ownership, completeness, and bookseller and auction house descriptions). These records of purchase, gift, and provenance are especially important when materials are going to be added to a cataloging backlog.

4. Eliminate cataloging backlogs. Though difficult, this is an essential step in enhancing the security of a library’s collections. Even if the backlog cannot be entirely eliminated, each library should reduce its backlog as much as it can. Stolen books that have been described in detail are far more easily identified and recovered than those that are not. Use the catalog record to describe copy-specific characteristics and bibliographic information that helps to distinguish among editions, issues, and states. Create machine-readable records for local public access and the national bibliographic databases. Participate in bibliographic projects that record detailed bibliographic descriptions.
5. Conduct regular inventories of both cataloged and uncataloged collections. This task is most effectively performed by staff members working in teams and should be conducted on a random basis. Proceeding through the collection in a predictable manner is not wise, since it may allow thieves to temporarily replace stolen materials. A simultaneous inventory of shelf list cards is also recommended, if this is not already a part of the procedure being followed. Inventories conducted even in small stages are valuable since they may reveal thefts (as well as misshelved books) and serve as a deterrent to any potential in-house thieves.

6. In Special Collections, record and verify (with photo ID) every user’s name and address, and require them to complete a paper or electronic call slip and registration form, and to sign a reading room log. Whether housed in the collection or in the institutional archive, they should be kept for at least five years in order to be available to law enforcement authorities if thefts or vandalism later come to light. In order to safeguard reader confidentiality, access to filed or archived call slips should be restricted to the collection curator, division chief, and library director. Library policies and practices, especially in the course of investigating possible thefts, should not violate applicable federal, state, and local confidentiality laws. Library security officers should be familiar with all applicable laws governing personally identifiable information about library use. Library policy should require law enforcement officials to present a subpoena supporting a demand to examine user records, such as call slips and registration logs. If the demand is made under the federal Patriot Act, a subpoena is not required, but a warrant is, and library policy should require that it be produced.

8. Review materials in the library’s general collections and open stacks for possible transfer to special collections or to a caged, limited access section of the library. Library staff should consult the “ACRL Guidelines on the Selection of General Collection Materials for Transfer to Special Collections,” 2nd edition, available from the ACRL office and published in C&RL News 54,11 (1993), revised on June 23, 1999 and posted on the RBMS Web site. Some libraries have identified rare materials in the open stacks in the course of special projects, such as reporting to the English Short Title Catalogue, or working through a collection development policy using the Research Libraries Group Conspectus.

9. A recent theft or act of vandalism may give an indication of a building area, subject, or artifactual genre that will be the target of future theft or mutilation. If it is appropriate, transfer to a more secure area materials related to those already stolen or mutilated. Remember that subject relationships may cross genre lines. The theft or mutilation of printed books or manuscripts may indicate that other genres of materials containing similar subject matter will become the targets of thieves and vandals.

10. Maintain a shelflist, preferably in paper form for special collections, in a secure area of the library. If the shelflist is electronic, it should be equipped with software that makes it secure from tampering and be duplicated in a backup tape stored off site. Since the shelflist tells the librarian precisely where each book, pamphlet, tape, CD, etc. should be located, and because it contains copy-specific information about special collections materials, its maintenance and security are vital for detecting and recovering thefts.

11. Reader use of materials should be confined to a secure area monitored by staff trained in surveillance. Consult the “ACRL Guidelines for the Security of Rare Books, Manuscripts, and Other Special Collections,” Section IV, for additional guidelines related to reading room security.

12. Install security cameras that cover Special Collections reading rooms and any access points that security professionals deem appropriate. If security cameras are supplied with tapes, the tapes should be retained for at least one month.

13. In conformity with applicable laws, formulate a policy regarding the physical detention of suspects.
Section II. Reacting to Library Theft

Every case of theft poses unique challenges, and many details of a library's response to a theft must be left to the judgement of its LSO and its Security Planning Group. However, these are the general guidelines that ACRL recommends.

A. If you observe or have been alerted to a theft in progress

Immediate actions

- Discreetly call for security personnel or the police (or signal a colleague to do so) and engage the suspect in nonthreatening conversation in the hope that the suspect will remain in the reading room until help arrives.
- Do not confront a suspect with accusations. Behave with the suspect as you would with any patron, requesting that circulated materials be returned before the suspect leaves. If materials are missing, politely ask for them. The suspect may have made an honest mistake. If the suspect denies that s/he ever had the materials or that they were returned, do not press the issue and do not put yourself at risk of physical harm. Follow your local policy regarding the physical detention of suspects.
- If the suspect is about to leave and help has not yet arrived, try to verify his/her registration information (e.g., contact a listed reference or call information to verify a residential address) before s/he leaves.
- If a police officer finds reasonable cause that a theft has occurred, insist that the officer place the suspect under arrest. (Laws regarding grounds for arrest vary from state to state. Know the relevant laws of your state.) If there is evidence of theft (e.g., library materials hidden on the suspect’s person), do not agree to the suspect’s release in return for the suspect’s assurances that s/he will return to face charges. If the officer will not make an arrest, attempt to persuade the officer to detain the suspect until the officer can verify his/her identity and place of residence.
- At the first opportunity, describe in writing the suspect’s physical appearance and an account of the entire event as witnessed and/or related. This document should be presented to law enforcement authorities when they arrive. Do not in any way alter materials that might be considered evidence.
- Notify the LSO.

B. If you discover a theft after it has occurred

Notification

- Immediately notify the LSO who will:
  - Notify appropriate administrative officers
  - Notify and serve as liaison with institutional security personnel as well as local law enforcement personnel
  - Notify institutional Public Relations Office

Gathering evidence

The LSO will compile a list of missing items. (This does not mean that the entire library or collection needs to be inventoried.) However, after the immediate steps listed below have been taken, it is suggested that works similar to those that have been stolen be inventoried (see Section I.G.9, above). In consultation with the above groups of notified persons, gather all available evidence of theft. Such evidence should include:
  - detailed, copy-specific descriptions of missing materials,
  - chain of custody documentation for missing materials (including call slips or photocopies of them),
  - indications of unauthorized physical access to restricted areas,
  - report on any missing shelflist cards and call slips, and database tampering, and
  - report on any indication of systematic patterns of loss of materials

Action plan

The LSO, in concert with appropriate library and institutional administration personnel, public relations personnel, security personnel, law enforcement (local, state, and federal, if necessary), and legal counsel will formulate a course of action that should include the following steps (in an order to be determined by those responsible for the process):
  - consultation and cooperation with judicial and law enforcement efforts on behalf of the library,
  - notification of appropriate stolen and missing books databases and other appropriate networks (see Appendix I for “Networking Resources Directory for Protection and Recovery”)
  - notification of local and regional booksellers and appropriate specialist sellers,
  - transfer of vulnerable items to a more secure location,
• arrangement of appraisals upon discovery of missing items and, again, if they have been returned damaged,
• questioning of staff regarding any suspicious behavior by users or other persons,
• preparation of regular communications to staff about progress in the case, consistent with the investigation’s integrity,
• preparation of news releases,
• preparation of responses by authorized library and institutional representatives to possible questions posed by the news media,
• instructions to all library and institutional staff on how to respond to news media inquiries, and
• maintenance of internal record of actions taken during the case’s progress, from its discovery to its final disposition.

APPENDIX II
The draft of proposed legislation presented below may have to be modified in order to conform with federal and state laws regarding search and seizure. Also, the recourse to civil law that is available to a detained suspect may differ from state to state, and the draft legislation may have to be modified in order to meet such potential challenges. However, the wording definitions should be adhered to; they have been formulated with the assistance of legal counsel. Nation-wide conformity to the definition of essential terminology in criminal legislation is desirable.

Draft of model legislation: theft and mutilation of library materials

Declaration of purpose
Because of the rising incidence of library theft and mutilation of library materials, libraries are suffering serious losses of books and other library property. In order to assure that research materials are available for public use, it is the policy of this state to provide libraries and their employees and agents with legal protection to ensure security for their collections. It is the policy of this state to affirm that local, state, and federal prosecution of crimes affecting books or other library property is executed with the same degree of diligence as is exercised in prosecution of crimes affecting other forms of property. Federal statute pertaining to stolen property is designed not only to implement federal-state cooperation in apprehending and punishing criminals who utilize, or cause to be utilized, channels of interstate commerce for transportation of property of which the owner has been wrongfully deprived, but also to deter original theft.

Definition of terms
“Library” means any public library; any library of an educational, benevolent, hereditary, historical, or eleemosynary institution, organization, or society; any museum; any repository of public or institutional records. “Book or other library property” means any book, plate, picture, photograph, print, painting, drawing, map, newspaper, magazine, pamphlet, broadside, manuscript, document, letter, public record, microform, sound recording, audiovisual material in any format, magnetic or other tape, catalog card or catalog record, electronic data processing record, artifact, or other documentary, written, or printed materials, or equipment, regardless of physical form or characteristics, belonging to, on loan to, or otherwise in the custody of a library.

Proposed wording
Section I.a.
Any person who willfully, maliciously, or wantonly writes upon, injures, defaces, tears, cuts, mutilates, or destroys any book, document, or other library property belonging to, on loan to, or otherwise in the custody of a library is guilty of a crime.

Section I.b.
The willful concealment of a book or other library property upon the person or among the belongings of the person or concealed upon the person or among the belongings of another while still on the premises of a library shall be considered prima facie evidence of intent to commit larceny thereof.

Section I.c.
The willful removal of a book or other library property in contravention of library regulations shall be considered prima facie evidence of intent to commit larceny thereof.

Section I.d.
The willful alteration or destruction of library ownership records, electronic or card catalog records retained apart from or applied directly to a book or other library property shall be considered prima facie evidence of intent to commit larceny of a book or other library property.

Section II.a.
An adult agent or employee of a library or that library’s parent institution, whether or not that employee or agent is part of a security force, who has reasonable grounds to suspect that a person committed, was committing, or was attempting to commit the acts described in Section I may detain the suspect. Immediately upon detention, the library employee shall identify himself/herself and state the reason for his/her action. If, after the initial confrontation with the suspect, the adult agent or library employee has reasonable grounds to believe that at the time of detention that the person committed, was committing, or was attempting to commit the crimes set forth in Section I, said employee or agent may detain such a person for a time sufficient to summon a peace officer to the library. Said detention must be accomplished in a reasonable manner without unreasonable restraints or excessive force and may take place only on the premises of the library where the alleged crime occurred. Library premises include the interior of a building, structure, or other enclosure in which a library facility is located; the exterior appurtenances to such building structure, or other enclosure; and the land on which such building, structure, or other enclosure is located. Any person so detained by an employee or agent of a library shall promptly be asked to identify himself/herself by name and address. Once placed under detention, the suspect shall not be required to provide any other information nor shall any written and/or signed statement be elicited from the suspect until a police officer has taken the suspect into custody. The said employee or agent may, however, examine said property which the employee or agent has reasonable grounds to believe was unlawfully taken as set forth in Section I.b and/or I.c, or injured or destroyed as set forth in Section I.a and/or I.d. Should the detained suspect refuse to surrender the item for examination, a search may be made only of packages, shopping bags, handbags, or other property in the immediate possession of the person detained; no clothing worn by the suspect may be searched.
The activation of an electronic article surveillance device as a result of a person exiting the premises or an area within the premises of a library where an electronic article surveillance device is located shall constitute probable cause for the detention of such person by such library or agent or employee of the library, provided that such person is detained only in a reasonable manner and only for such time as is necessary for an inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the activation of the device, and provided that clear and visible notice is posted at each exit and location within the premises where such device is located indicating the presence of an antitheft device. For purposes of this section, "electronic article surveillance device" means an electronic device designed and operated for the purpose of detecting the removal from the premises or a protected area within such premises, of any specially marked or tagged book or other library property.

Section II.b.
For the purposes of Section II.a, "reasonable grounds" shall include, but not be limited to, knowledge that a person has concealed or injured a book or other library property while on the premises of the library or the inability of the suspect to produce the library material for which there is a document proving that person had used but had not returned said material.

Section II.c.
In detaining a person who the employee or agent of the library has reasonable grounds to believe has committed, was committing, or was attempting to commit any of the crimes set forth in Section I, the said employee or agent may use a reasonable amount of nondeadly force when and only when such force is necessary to protect the employee or agent or to prevent the escape of the person being detained or the loss of the library's property.

Section III.
An adult agent or employee of a library who stops, detains, and/or arrested, provided that in stopping, detaining, or causing the arrest of the person, the adult agent or employee had at the time of the stopping, detention, or arrest reasonable grounds to believe that the person had committed, was committing, or was attempting to commit any of the crimes set forth in Section I.

Section IV.
The fair market value of property affected by crimes set forth in Section I determines the class of offense: value under $500 constitutes a misdemeanor; $500-$5,000 a Class I felony; above $5,000, a Class II felony.

The aggregate value of all property referred to in a single indictment shall constitute the value thereof.

Section V.
A copy or abstract of this act shall be posted and prominently displayed in all libraries.

Section VI.
This act shall take effect upon passage.

Poster session: 4:00 p.m.–5:00 p.m.

Transformational Learning Communities: Claiming Our Future
Join your colleagues for a spirited forum featuring Dr. Barbara Leigh Smith, Co-Director of the National Learning Communities Project. Learn about the transformational nature of learning communities and the roles librarians can play in these dynamic activities and initiatives. Three librarians from diverse academic environments will also share their experiences related to the learning communities concept. A poster session will be conducted immediately following the program featuring creative learning communities that have been implemented in academic libraries across the country. Speakers: Barbara Leigh Smith, Co-Director, Pew Charitable Trusts National Learning Community Project; Theresa S. Byrd, Director of Libraries, Ohio Wesleyan University; Randy Burke Hensley, Head of Public Services, University of Hawaii at Manoa; Joan Lippincott, Associate Executive Director, Coalition for Networked Information.

New Occasions, New Duties: Changing Roles and Expectations in Special Collections
Change, both good and bad, is not made without some inconvenience. How does change affect and influence collection development, programming, public services, cataloging, teaching, recruitment, and scholarly research in rare books and manuscripts? The preconference will examine the different aspects and implications of change, and show ways in which special collections librarians can take advantage of change for their own use and development. Speakers include: Carla J. Stoffle, University of Arizona; James Vinson Carmichael, Jr., University of North Carolina at Greensboro; Robert L. Byrd, Duke University; Michael Lomax, Dillard University; Deborah Lipstadt, Emory University.

Fees: ACRL members: $195; Non Members: $250; Students: $75; Late Fee (after May 10): $50

Programs

Saturday, June 15

ACRL Ethics Committee
10:30 a.m.—12:00 p.m., Track: Staff / Subtrack: Management

Ethical Dilemmas and Libraries: An Analytic Model

Discuss the utility of a principle-based ethical model as it might apply to ethical problems encountered by library staff and administrators. The speaker will use the model to analyze the ethical problems recently encountered at Emory University in co-sponsoring an exhibit of photographs and postcards of lynchings in the United States from 1870-1960. The exhibit is currently mounted at the Martin Luther King Jr. National Historic Site and Emory assisted in developing educational materials and programs.

Speaker: John Banja, Center of Ethics, Emory University.

ACRL African American Studies Section (AFAS)
1:30–3:30 p.m., Track: Collection Management / Subtrack: Selection, Evaluation, & Preservation

When Old is New: The Art of Creating New African-American Special Collections

The past few years have witnessed a resurgence of interest in African American special collections. Several new research libraries and centers have been created. Well-established libraries that had not previously collected African American materials have begun to develop research collections in this area. Learn about these new collections and examine methods of acquiring materials, developing donor bases, conducting outreach, and collaborating with other collections.

Speakers: Randall K. Burkett, African-American Studies Bibliographer, Emory University; Lucelia Flood-Partridge, Auburn Avenue Research Library on African-American Culture and History, Atlanta-Fulton Public Library System; Pearl Woolridge, African American Research Library and Cultural Center, Von D. Mizelle Library; Moderator: Karen L. Jefferson, Head, Archives and Special Collections, Atlanta University Center.

ACRL Arts Section (ARTS)
1:30 p.m.—5:30 p.m., Track: Collection Management / Subtrack: Selection, Evaluation, & Preservation

Artist’s Books: Creating, Publishing & Collecting

Hear about the evolution of the artist book from creation to production to acquisition. Learn more about each aspect of the process from individuals directly involved. Following the panel discussion, Ms. Steven will conduct tours of the Atlanta College of Art Library artists’ book collection (located at the Woodruff Arts Center) and Mr. Freeman will conduct small group tours of Nexus Press. Directions will be provided at the program.

Speakers: Johanna Drucker, Robertson Professor of Media Studies and Director of the Interdisciplinary Program in Media Studies, University of Virginia; Brad Freeman, Director of Production, Nexus Press, Atlanta Contemporary Art Center, and Editor, Journal of Artists Books; Arthur H. Jaffe, private collector; James A. Findlay, Librarian/Curator, Biennes Center for the Literary Arts, Broward County Main Library; Moira Steven, Library Director, Atlanta College of Art Library.

ACRL Distance Learning Section (DLS)
1:30 p.m.—3:30 p.m., Track: Services and Programs / Subtrack: Information Literacy and Instruction

E-Research Companies: Value-Added or Virtually Redundant?

A discussion for professionals concerned about plagiarism, duplication of resources, marketing of library services, and information competency.

Speakers: James Neal, Columbia University Libraries; Troy Williams, Questia Media, Inc.; Dr. Morris Shepard, Authority Finder; Susan Swords Steffen, Elmhurst College; Moderator: Michael McManus, Co-Anchor, CNN Student News.
ACRL Education and Behavioral Sciences Section (EBSS)
1:30 p.m.–3:30 p.m., Track: Staff / Subtrack: Staff Development

Games Academics Play: Mastering the Social Psychology of Faculty/Librarian Relationships

This program brings together faculty library users and librarians to offer a candid exploration of faculty/librarian relationships in academic settings. Examine faculty behavior, perceptions of, and attitudes towards librarians and their role in learning and academic support. Learn more about faculty needs and learn strategies to foster mutual communication and understanding in the academic environment. Speakers: John M. Budd, School of Information Science and Learning Technologies, University of Missouri at Columbia; Lars Christiansen, Department of Sociology, Augsburg College; Mindy Stombler, Department of Sociology, Georgia State University; James Emshoff, Department of Psychology, Georgia State University.

ACRL University Libraries Section (ULS)
1:30 p.m.–3:30 p.m., Track: Staff / Subtrack: Management

Minding the Generation Gap: Learn How to Communicate and Work Together Across Generations

Like other organizations, academic libraries face challenges posed by generational differences in their workforce. Baby boomers, Gen Xers, and Gen Yers bring varying work ethics, expectations, and goals to the library. Learn how to recognize these differences to promote communication and facilitate better working relationships. Speakers: Sheila Creth, University of Iowa; Faye Backie, Michigan State University; Crit Stuart, Georgia Tech; Jody Fagan, Southern Illinois University.

SPARC/ACRL Forum, Atlanta
1:30 p.m.–3:30 p.m.

Open Access to Scholarship: Paths for Libraries

At this SPARC/ACRL Forum, participants will explore ways libraries can support the most promising open access initiatives, including: institutional repositories; open-access journals; and other new ventures. ACRL’s new Scholarly Communications Committee will launch at the Forum with a presentation on its goals for the next two years. We hope to see you there!

ACRL Law and Political Science Section (LPSS)
2:00 p.m.–4:00 p.m.
Track: Services and Programs / Subtrack: Information Literacy and Instruction

Librarians in the Big Leagues: Are You Ready for the Teaching Academy?

Many of our institutions are placing greater emphasis on the teaching academy as a means of promoting and improving teaching skills. This program explores two aspects of the teaching academy. First, how can librarians help classroom teachers improve their teaching through the use of the library? Second, how can librarians receive training to become better teachers? Librarians now have the opportunity to become engaged in this cutting-edge practice. Speakers: Sally M. Ives, Director of the Faculty Center for Teaching, University of North Carolina at Charlotte; Linda C. Smith, Interim Dean, Graduate School of Library and Information Science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; Susan Searing, Library and Information Science Library, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

ACRL Literatures in English Section (LES)
2:00 p.m.–4:00 p.m., Track: Services and Programs / Subtrack: Information Literacy and Instruction

Teaching Literary Research: Challenges in a Changing Environment

Literary studies and their supporting library collections can be simultaneously conservative and cutting-edge. In no other discipline does “the book” continue to hold so much importance. Yet networks, databases, and digital works all impact the research process of the literary scholar. The field has also embraced new methodological approaches in recent years. Learn about challenges instruction librarians face in this changing environment when teaching the research process to users. Speakers: James Bracken, Ohio State University; James Hamer, Department of English, Texas A&M University; Helene Williams, Widener Library, Harvard University; William Wortman, Miami University.
Sunday, June 16

ACRL Anthropology and Sociology Section (ANSS)
8:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m., Track: Staff / Subtrack: Staff Development

Shamanism: Implications for Revisioning Librarianship

Examine shamanism from three different perspectives. A cultural anthropologist and professor of religion will define the term, look at its historical development in American culture, and comment on modern-day applications in contemporary societies. A medical anthropologist will examine the healing aspects of shamanism in earlier eras and today. A sociologist and professor of library science will offer a sociological perspective on shamanism and why it appeals to high-tech information-driven cultures like our own. Speakers: Dr. Delia Easton, Center for Disease Control and Prevention; Gary M. Laderman, Department of Religion, Emory University; Sydney J. Pierce, School of Library Science, Catholic University.

ACRL Asian, African and Middle Eastern Section (AAMES)
8:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m., Track: Collection Management / Subtrack: Authors and Literary Sessions

Mission Brief: The Research Legacies of Missionary Literatures

Hear from a panel of research librarians familiar with the history of mission work in the geographic regions of Asia, Africa, and the Middle East. Learn about the unique evolution and composition of this class of literature (including newspapers and periodicals), factors that influence its production and dissemination. Learn more about the historic and continuing impact on popular Western perceptions of these lands, the rise of area studies, and research applications of this diverse body of data. Speakers: Haipeng Li, Oberlin College Library; Norman Ross, Norman Ross Associates; Dr. Gregory Finnegan, Tozzer Library, Harvard University; Russel Kracke, American Theological Library Association.

ACRL College Libraries Section (CLS)
9:30 a.m.–11:00 a.m., Track: Services and Programs / Subtrack: Services

Will the Real Customer Please Stand Up? Designing Services for 21st-Century Users

Learn about the range of issues related to customer service outreach and the delivery of assistance. Find out where our customers are, what they are doing, and what they expect from library services. Hear advice from librarians who have studied their users and designed services for their 21st-century clientele. Speakers: Barbara Valentine, Reference and Systems Librarian, Linfield College; Janet Cotrell, Director of Information Access, Kenyon College; Maryann Hight, Instructional Services Librarian, Bates College; Rachel Cheng, Associate University Librarian, Wesleyan University.

ACRL Copyright Committee
9:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m., Track: Issues and Updates / Subtrack: Intellectual Freedom

Pirates on the Commons: Legal & Political Assaults on Information Access by the Expanding Domain of Copyright

Increase your awareness of the politics of copyright law and fair use and encourage involvement in copyright politics. Learn about the negative impact of recently enacted laws and judicial opinions; learn about their effect on scholarship, teaching, and libraries. The relationship between intellectual freedom and copyright will also be explored. Speakers: L. Ray Patterson, Pope Brock Professor of Law, University of Georgia; Carrie Russell, Copyright Specialist, ALA; Mary M. Case, Director of the Office of Scholarly Communication, ARL; Lawrence Lessig, Professor of Law, Stanford Law School.
ACRL Intellectual Freedom Committee
10:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m., Track: Issues and Updates / Subtrack: Intellectual Freedom

Pornography in Libraries: Sexual Harassment?
The availability of sexually explicit materials on the Internet has created new challenges for the library as a workplace. Can unrestricted Internet access create a sexually hostile work environment for library staff? A recent ruling by the Minneapolis EEOC suggests that it may. This brings two deeply held library values—intellectual freedom and equitable workplaces—into apparent conflict. Join us for a timely and stimulating discussion. Speakers: Camille Hebert; Robert Corn-Revere, Hogan & Hartson; Elizabeth Williams.

ACRL Racial & Ethnic Diversity Committee
10:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m., Track: Services and Programs / Subtrack: Public Services

Outreach in the Academic Library
Learn about academic library programs developed to create a bridge between university libraries, community colleges, and the K–12 community. Explore ways to reach out to campus communities and communities-at-large and find out how to create a “seamless education” to bridge students and libraries. Discover how to provide the personal and academic support necessary in the students’ quest to succeed in an academic environment. Job Shadow Day will be one program highlighted. Speakers: Lothar Spang, Librarian, Wayne State University Adamany Undergraduate Library; Elaina Norlin, Assistant Librarian, University of Arizona Library; Gloria L. Rhodes, Outreach Librarian, San Diego State University.

ACRL Instruction Section (IS)
1:30 p.m.–3:30 p.m., Track: Services and Programs / Subtrack: Information Literacy and Instruction

Building Premier Learning Communities: Strategies for Successful Library Involvement
Learning communities have been described as “an intentional process of redesigning curriculum and bringing faculty and students together to create more coherent and collaborative learning environments.” This program will investigate the components of successful learning communities and suggest specific strategies for library involvement. Speakers: Nancy Shapiro, Associate Vice Chancellor, Academic Affairs, University System of Maryland; Martha Henn McCormick, Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis Undergraduate Library; James B. Young, George Mason University; Kimberly B. Kelley, University of Maryland.

ACRL Rare Books and Manuscripts Section (RBMS)
1:30 p.m.–5:30 p.m., Track: Digital Libraries / Subtrack: Access and Services

The Emergence of Digital Scholarship: New Models for Librarians, Archivists and Humanists
Humanities scholars are increasingly building thematically-based digital research collections comprising primary resources as well as critical secondary resources. Building these internationally accessible collections requires close collaboration among humanists, librarians, and archivists at repositories holding dispersed and related materials. Issues involving access, ownership, collaboration, rights, user expectations, and non-traditional user populations will be discussed. Speakers: Martha Nell Smith, Director of the Maryland Institute for Technology in the Humanities, University of Maryland; Morris Eaves, Professor of English, University of Rochester; Daniel V. Pitti, Institute for Advanced Technology in the Humanities, University of Virginia; John Unsworth, Institute for Advanced Technology in the Humanities, University of Virginia; Rutherford W. Witthus, Curator of Literary and Natural History Collections, University of Connecticut.
ACRL Slavic and East European Section (SEES)
1:30 p.m.–3:30 p.m., Track: Staff / Subtrack: Staff Development

What Do You Do When You Don’t Have a Subject Specialist?
Research needs strain your library scope? SEES explores the issue. The Slavic & East European Section demonstrates the problem of faculty and students’ research interests going beyond the scope of the library. Libraries can lack specific subject specialists, language expertise, or the area may just not be one previously collected. Speakers include a historian requiring more material than his home library can provide, and librarians who work to help that situation. Speakers: Helen Sullivan, Head of the Slavic Reference Service, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; Erika Banski, Slavic Librarian, University of Alberta; Gregory Ference, Department of History, Salisbury University.

Monday, June 17
ACRL Science and Technology Section (STS)
8:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m., Track: Issues and Updates / Subtrack: Digital Society

Old, New, Borrowed, and Blue: Science & Technology Intellectual Property Issues in the Digital Age
Concerned about the intellectual property issues that affect the creation and distribution of scientific and technical information? Here’s your chance to learn more about how copyright, fair use of research materials, licensing restrictions on information use, and patents are affecting access to scientific information. A one-hour poster session follows the panel presentations. Speakers: Dr. Alan Covich, Professor, Department of Fishery and Wildlife Biology, Colorado State University; Linda S. Dobb, Executive Vice President, Bowling Green State University; Carrie Russell, Copyright Specialist, American Library Association.

ACRL Women’s Studies Section (WSS)
9:00 a.m.–12:00 p.m., Track: Issues and Updates / Subtrack: Digital Society

Women, Technology, and Libraries
Little attention is paid to issues that surround women’s use and understanding of technology or how women library employees can use technology to advance their careers. Find out how to create an effective technology learning environment. Discover how we as women are refining ourselves and our profession and learn what women seeking career growth in information technology need to know. Speakers: Dolores Fidishun, Head Librarian, Penn State Great Valley School of Graduate Professional Studies; Kristin H. Gerhard, Collections Officer, Iowa State University; Kelly Barrick Hovendick, Womens Studies & Sociology Specialist, Syracuse University.

ACRL Western European Studies Section (WESS)
10:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m., Track: Digital Libraries / Subtrack: Access & Services

Mapping the Future of Historical Scholarship About Europe
Find out about the current developments and future trends in the digitization of historic course materials, including their creation and accessibility. Discover how to identify online texts, digital images, and data sets that are relevant to research on Western Europe. Participate in a forum and discuss issues such as preservation of materials, cost, and viability of digital projects, collaboration, sharing of resources, and special users’ needs. Speakers: Humphrey Southall, Reader in Geography, University of Portsmouth; Karl Longstreth, Social Sciences Librarian, University of Michigan; Richard Hacken, European Studies Bibliographer, Brigham Young University.

Future of Academic Librarianship

The Focus on the Future Task Force would like to announce an Open Forum on the Future of Academic Librarianship. The Open Forum will be held on Sunday afternoon, from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. This important event will be a part of the data collection effort the task force is undertaking to create the first top ten issues list to be published in a fall issue of C&RL News.

The Open Forum on Academic Library Futures will be key to the collection of member thoughts on the big questions facing librarianship. We will work in groups to identify the issues beyond daily work-life and consider the profession from a larger perspective. Issues related to the higher education environment, to the organization of libraries, to collection issues, or to information legislative issues, among others, might be discussed.

Among the questions to be considered are:
1. What are the key trends and developments that academic librarians need to pay attention to?
2. What issues are so serious that they might keep you awake at night?
3. How well prepared are we to address the big questions?

Please make plans to attend the Open Forum in Atlanta on Sunday afternoon. We need your help and your good ideas.
