NOTICES

- The Boston Theological Institute Library Development Program this spring began publishing a bibliographic newsletter titled Renewals. Through this new publication the BTI librarians are seeking to assist the BTI community in making increasingly critical and creative use of library resources in the context of theological education and ministry. The venture signals the librarians’ concern to augment responsible collections development with active dissemination of information about those growing resources beyond the walls of the actual library.

Popular in style, Renewals highlights the special collections within the BTI libraries, notes significant new purchases and reference tools of special value, discusses library research methods, and answers questions brought to the attention of the librarians. Renewals is addressed to faculty and students of all degree programs, but the tools especially pertinent to master of divinity programs receive the greatest attention.

Two issues were published this spring. Six issues will be published during the next academic year, three each semester.

A sample issue is available without charge to libraries if accompanied by a self-addressed stamped business envelope (#10). A single subscription is $3 annually. Bulk rates also are available for potential distribution in other institutional settings. Address inquiries to BTI Library Development Office, 45 Francis Avenue, Cambridge, MA 02138.

- The role of personnel officers in ARL libraries has changed over the past few years due to a growing number of governmental regulations and guidelines, increasing staff needs and demands within a complex organization, and recognition by library leaders of the importance of a committed and well-trained staff. This and other findings of telephone interviews conducted in the spring of 1978 are reported upon in the latest SPEC Kit and Flyer (#45, June 1978) on the Changing Role of the ARL Library Personnel Officer.

The two-page flyer discusses several areas where personnel officers have assumed more responsibilities and briefly discusses future trends. The seventy-six-page kit contains nine documents from ARL member libraries including three reports on changes in personnel functions, three examples of selection and performance evaluation programs, and three examples of staff development and training programs.

Flyer and Kit #45 on the Changing Role of Personnel Officers in ARL Libraries is available for $7.50 to ARL members and SPEC subscribers, and for $15 to all others, prepayment required, from SPEC, Office of Management Studies, Association of Research Libraries, 1527 New Hampshire Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20036.

- The Proceedings from Southeastern Conference on Approaches to Bibliographic Instruction, March 16–17, 1978, have been published by the College of Charleston and are now available for purchase. The conference papers cover several areas of concern in the field of bibliographic instruction: construction of objectives, uses of instructional evaluation, faculty-library communication techniques, grantmanship, and instructional methods. Included in the publication are lectures from several scholars in the field of bibliographic education: James Ward, director of Southeastern Bibliographic Instruction Clearinghouse; Evan Farber, director of Lilly Library, Earlham College; Carla Stoffle, assistant director, University of Wisconsin-Parkside Library; Richard Werking, head of reference, University of Mississippi Library; Laurence Sherrill, associate professor, Pratt Institute, among others.

Copies of the proceedings can be purchased from Continuing Education Office, The College of Charleston, Charleston, SC 29401. The price is...
$7 per copy and prepayment is required.

- The American Jewish Committee's William E. Weiner Oral History Library, now the largest Jewish library of its kind in the country, announces the publication of its first catalog of 600 oral memoirs, developed in less than a decade, recording the life and times of American Jews from all walks of life during the twentieth century.

The memoirs represent more than 2,000 taped hours and 61,000 pages of typed transcription. In addition to individual biographies, the library's program includes special projects handling such issues as "Jews in American politics," "Jewish participation in civil rights in the 1960s," and a three-generational study of American Jewish women. The project, made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, includes interviews from 250 Holocaust survivors and family members concerning their wartime experiences, their adaptation to life in the United States, and the effects of the Holocaust on their children.

The library is developing cooperative projects with a number of major American colleges and universities, including the Schlesinger Library of Radcliffe College, Yale University School of Music's oral history program, Schaeffer Library at Union College, and the Bancroft Library at the University of California, Berkeley, and is exploring the possibilities of exchanging memoirs with the Free University of Berlin in Germany. It recently has enlarged its research resources to serve as a center of information and a clearinghouse for American Jewish oral history projects across the country.

The catalog is available for $2.50 prepaid from the Weiner Oral History Library, c/o American Jewish Committee, 165 East 56 St., New York, NY 10022.

- Analytical Access: History, Resources, Needs, by Richard J. Hyman, has been published by the Queens College Press. This sixty-eight-page monograph, No. 2 in Queens College Studies in Librarianship, General Editor, Robert A. Colby, can be ordered prepaid for $5 from Campus Store, Queens College, Flushing, NY 11367. Checks should be made out to Campus Store, Queens College.

Dr. Hyman deals with access to units of information within other works: periodicals, newspapers, series, composite and noncomposite books. He traces analytical cataloging, periodical indexing, and abstracting from their beginnings to today's on-line indexing and abstracting services. He offers practical suggestions for effective utilization, even by computerized libraries, of the many printed indexing and abstracting services and relates them to computerized counterparts.

Dr. Hyman's monograph is designed as a manual for librarians as well as a text for library school students and instructors in both readers and technical services. Included are illustrations; notes; glossary; chronology; list of the abstracting and indexing services coded in Ulrich's International Periodicals Directory; lists of the data bases available from SDC, DIALOG, and BRS; and an extensive bibliography.

- Libraries and individuals who use them may someday have access to a centralized collection of periodical literature if a plan for a National Periodicals Center, just published by the Council on Library Resources, Inc. (CLR), is put into effect. The 272-page document, A National Periodicals Center Technical Development Plan, sets forth the goals, objectives, structure, technical requirements, pricing schedule, and stages of development of such a facility.

In 1977 the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science proposed a periodicals center for the U.S. in its Effective Access to Periodical Literature: A National Program (Washington, D.C., 1977). That document recommended that the Library of Congress assume responsibility for developing, managing, and operating the center. LC asked the Council to put together a technical development plan that could be used by the Library of Congress or any other agency prepared to establish a major periodicals facility. Several foundations contributed to the cost of preparing the plan, which was completed in August 1978 by a CLR project team headed by C.
Lee Jones, health sciences librarian at Columbia University.

In his foreword CLR President Warren J. Haas says the plan “is not a formal pronouncement by the Council ... but is rather a document for consideration, to be refined if necessary and used without delay to help turn the aspirations long held by librarians and users of libraries into accomplishment.” The document discusses possible new relationships between publishers and a national periodicals center and takes into account requirements of the 1976 copyright law. Implementation and a possible governance structure are also explored.

Copies of A National Periodicals Center Technical Development Plan are available upon request from the Library of Congress, Information Office, Washington, DC 20540.

Librarians at Boston University Choose Union Representation

On August 11, 1978, the professional librarians at the Mugar Memorial Library at Boston University voted 11-7 for representation by Local 925, Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO. The BU librarians join the Brandeis University librarians, represented by Local 925 since 1976, thus becoming the second group of private academic librarians in the Boston area to successfully seek collective bargaining rights.

“The librarians hope to use collective bargaining to improve salaries and benefits as well as to further professional concerns,” commented Jackie Ruff, Local 925 representative.

Graduate Assistantships Available

The Graduate School of Library Service of the University of Alabama will have twelve graduate assistantships available for the academic year 1979-80. Assistants will participate in a bibliographic instruction program that is offered cooperatively by the library and the English Department. Ten hours of service per week is required with remuneration exceeding $5 an hour. The out-of-state tuition differential is waived for non-Alabamians. Applicants without prior library experience will be expected to begin in summer school; others may await the fall semester. The deadline for selecting recipients is March 15, 1979. Applications from minorities are encouraged.

Oberly Award for Bibliography in the Agricultural Sciences

A biennial award given in odd-numbered years, consisting of a citation and a cash award, the Eunice Rockwell Oberly Memorial Award is presented to an American citizen who compiles the best bibliography in the field of agriculture or one of the related sciences in the two-year period preceding the year in which the award is made. The bibliographies are judged on accuracy, scope, usefulness, format, and special features such as explanatory introductions, annotations, and indexes.

Made possible by a fund established by colleagues in memory of Eunice Rockwell Oberly, the award is administered by the Agricultural and Biological Sciences Section of the Association of College and Research Libraries.

Deadline for nominations is March 15, 1979. Send nominations to the jury chair, Leila Padgett Moran, National Agricultural Library, Beltsville, MD 20705. Staff liaison, Julie A. C. Virgo, ACRL executive secretary.

If you haven't browsed through an issue of Booklist lately, you're in for a big surprise.

Booklist has changed in many ways. From cover to cover. Inside and out. In appearance and in content.

For example, by working with publishers' galleys, we now review many titles in advance of publication.

We are also packing more reviews into each issue. Reviews of more than 5,000 books and 1,600 nonprint items were published in the last volume year.

And remember, with the exception of those in the Reference and Subscription Books Section, every review in Booklist is a recommendation to purchase.

Remember, too, that Booklist is the only review medium that includes Dewey Decimal classifications and Library of Congress subject headings with each review.

The idea, of course, is to provide as much helpful information as possible on new books and nonprint material to assist you in making sound selections for your library or school media center.

This is why, in addition to our regular reviews, new columns have been added to the first-of-the-month issues: Cookbooks, Plants and Gardening, Paperback Non-fiction, Series and Editions, First Novels, Science Fiction, Westerns and Video.

Listings of recent Paperback Reprints also appear in the adult and children's sections of this issue.

In addition, special features such as Adult Basic Education, Canadian Books, Popular Reading for Children, Professional Reading, and Slides appear in Booklist periodically.

Booklist. Over 38,000 libraries subscribe to it. And for one reason—the reviews. Reviews that are better than ever. But don't just take our word for it. Rediscover Booklist.

Fill out and mail the coupon below. If you like, we'll send you the latest issue of Booklist with our compliments. Look us over. Review our reviews. There's no obligation to subscribe. But, be warned: you may be so pleased with just one issue of Booklist that you won't be able to wait to come back for more.
