lishing activity. Consisting of over 25,000 entries, the directory lists areas of specialization, addresses, telephone and telex numbers, and the ISBN publisher's prefix where applicable.

- Film Study Collections: A Guide to Their Development and Use, by Nancy Allen (Frederick Ungar, $14), presents a description of the literature on film broken down by form and subject—monographs, periodicals, nonprint, scripts, dealers, major U.S. archives, and reference services—and includes a chapter by Michael Gorman on cataloging and classification.

- Bowker has published a second edition of Marshall Lee's Bookmaking: The Illustrated Guide to Design/Production/Editing ($25). When the first edition was published in 1965, "the advanced equipment and processes that now dominate bookmaking existed in elemental form or were in experimental states," and the new edition describes these new "computer-controlled machines that have transformed most bookmaking processes from mechanical to electronic-optical systems."

- Libraries Designed for Users: A Planning Handbook, by Nolan Lushington and Willis N. Mills, Jr. (Gaylord Professional Publications, $22.50), emphasizes the role of the library as an information center and is intended primarily to assist in the planning of public libraries for communities of 10,000 to 100,000.

- The American Association for State and Local History has published Edward P. Alexander's Museums in Motion: An Introduction to the History and Functions of Museums ($12.95 cloth, $7.95 paper). This new history not only covers various kinds of museums—art, natural history, science and technology, history, botanical gardens, and zoos—but also looks to their several roles—collection, conservation, research, exhibition, interpretation, and cultural center—and the function of the museum professional.

- Esther Stinem, former women's studies librarian-at-large for the University of Wisconsin system, is the author of Women's Studies: A Recommended Core Bibliography (Libraries Unlimited, $27.50 U.S. and Canada; $33 elsewhere), which presents an annotated bibliography of 1,763 books concerning women and periodicals to support a college program on women's studies.

- The summer 1979 issue of Library Trends (separate issues available for $5 from the University of Illinois Press) is devoted to "The Economics of Academic Libraries." Issue editors are Allen Kent, Jacob Cohen, and K. Leon Montgomery.

- Collection Management is the title of number 11 in the LJ Special Report series ($5, cash with order, $3.95). Most of the authors are from academic libraries, and their articles, covering a wide range of subjects, are grouped in three sections, "Buying on a Budget," "The New Special Collections," and "Periodicals: Needs/Cost/Uses."
