DIRECTOR OF THE EUGENE MCDERMOTT LIBRARY
University of Texas at Dallas

The University of Texas at Dallas seeks nominations and applications for the position of Director of The Eugene McDermott Library. The Director reports to the Executive Vice President/Provost, supervises the Library personnel and budgets, and works cooperatively with UTD Deans, faculty, students, university staff, and interested citizens to provide knowledgeable and dynamic leadership in helping the Library reach its maximum potential and the University realize its ambitious academic goals.

The Eugene McDermott Library comprises the main library facility on the Richardson campus and the specialized library of the Callier Center for Communication Disorders, located in Dallas adjacent to the campus of The University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center. The McDermott Library maintains an active Corporate Information Service for Dallas-area businesses and several outstanding special collections, including the A.A. Jaffe Holocaust Collection, the Philatelic, the History of Aviation. The Library staff currently consists of two dozen professionals along with four dozen paraprofessionals and student assistants. The Library's personnel budget for FY2001 is $2,150,000, and its collections and materials budget is $2,200,000. The current collection includes approximately 800,000 volumes and a periodical subscription list of approximately 1,400 journals. The Library is purchasing Endeavor Information System Voyager for electronic management of its operations and participates actively in various collaborative consortia programs involving The University of Texas System and the other major research universities of the north Texas region. Additional information about UTD and The Eugene McDermott Library can be found at: http://www.utdallas.edu/library.

Founded in 1969, UTD, one of the nine general academic components of The University of Texas System, is a young, growing Carnegie Doctoral I institution with a historically strong emphasis on research that currently enrolls 5,600 undergraduate and 4,500 post-baccalaureate students. Located in the Telecom Corridor, a major concentration of internationally prominent telecommunication and microelectronics companies at the juncture of northern Dallas with the cities of Richardson and Plano, UTD is surrounded by a mix of corporate office parks and residential neighborhoods. Ranked by U.S. News and World Report as one of three Texas Tier III or better universities and by Personal Finance magazine as one of the three Texas institutions in the top 100 U.S. public universities, the SAT scores of UTD’s freshman classes rank at the top of Texas’s public universities, the per capita external research support of its faculty is high, and its doctoral graduates have filled many prestigious academic and nonacademic positions.

UTD is committed to establishing a forefront position in electronic access to information while sustaining the development of its conventional library materials. UTD seeks to appoint a Director who understands the critical role of the 21st-century library in a complex research-oriented university and the vital importance of emerging technologies to that role, who can manage a complex operation of finances and personnel, and who can work productively with external constituencies in order to supplement state and student-fee support of Library functions with private support.

Desired qualifications include a MLS from an ALA-accredited institution or equivalent experience, an earned doctorate, progressively responsible positions in library administration, conceptual and applied expertise in library automation and electronic access modalities, and good communication and interpersonal skills. Review of candidates will commence on August 1, 2000. Applications should include a statement of interest, a current résumé, and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of at least four professional references, and should be addressed to:

INFORMATION LITERACY MINORITY RESIDENCY
Plattsburgh State University of New York

The Division of Library & Information Services at Plattsburgh State University of New York is seeking qualified applicants for an Information Literacy Minority Residency position. This twelve-month position is a two-year, non-tenure appointment; the possibility of a tenure track position may exist at the conclusion of the term appointment. The Information Literacy Minority Residency offers exceptional opportunities to gain significant experience in the area of information literacy and instructional technology. The position will provide a multifaceted residency experience for a librarian who is particularly interested in developing skills in the area of library instruction/information literacy and advance the library’s development of the information literacy curriculum through the integration of technology. In addition, we hope to increase the number of librarians from underrepresented populations here at Plattsburgh State University of New York.

Plattsburgh State's Library & Information Services Division offers an outstanding environment for the successful candidate to gain experience in all aspects of library instruction, information literacy, and instructional technology. Feinberg Library offers a comprehensive instruction program including course-related instruction and a required one-credit course, which is a component of General Education curriculum. Additionally, the integration of information literacy across the curriculum is presently a key initiative in the College's strategic plan. As a member of the Instruction Unit, the successful candidate will have an opportunity to participate in all aspects of the College's information literacy program. The successful candidate will also have the opportunity to work with the Instructional Technology Unit in integrating technology into the curriculum.

Primary opportunities of the position are working with and learning from an outstanding library and instructional technology staff, working in a mentoring relationship in an academic environment that values information literacy, and working in an environment that is actively involved in integration of technology into the curriculum.

Residency responsibilities include: developing and teaching sections of the library's one-credit course and course-related instruction sessions; working with the Instruction Unit in program development, planning, implementation, and assessment; exploring cutting-edge instructional technology approaches and applications; integrating information literacy into distance learning; and developing and pursuing a research project with an emphasis on publishing or presenting results. Reference work is also integral to this position.

Qualifications: An expectation of the award of an MLS degree by January 2001 from an ALA-accredited institution or foreign equivalent; a strong interest in and commitment to instruction/information literacy; energy, creativity, strong interpersonal skills, and excellent oral and written communication skills. Librarians seeking to change career paths from other types of libraries are also encouraged to apply.

Salary: $36,000 minimum, with excellent benefits.

Applications from women and minority candidates are especially welcomed. Plattsburgh State University of New York is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer.

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until position is filled. Please send a letter of application, résumé, and names, addresses, and phone numbers of three references to:
