WICHE Is Not WILCO

WILCO can be dropped from librarians' acronym-bespattered vocabulary! At a meeting in Salt Lake City, Utah, the Western Interstate Library Coordinating Organization voted to retire WILCO as the name for their interstate coordinating activities. The group henceforth will be titled the Western Council of State Libraries.

The state librarians have called themselves the Western Council during the ten-year history of their multistate cooperative program that has been housed at WICHE (Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education). The name WILCO was selected last year to henceforth will be titled the Western Council during the ten-year history of State Libraries.
