Northwestern opens facility for faculty library and technology needs

Northwestern University Library and Northwestern University Information Technology have completed construction on a new facility designed to serve the library and technology needs of faculty and teaching graduate students.

This new facility brings together the University’s Academic Technologies division, the Library’s Collection Management office, and the Marjorie I. Mitchell Digital Media Services. These units will combine to assist faculty in obtaining a range of services from traditional library bibliographic services to creating course Web pages to digital library projects.

“Over time, we believe this facility will enable Northwestern faculty to be among the best equipped in the country to use technology in their teaching and research,” says David Bishop, Charles Deering McCormick university librarian.

The new facility creates one-stop shopping for library and technology needs. While there, faculty can get help from subject bibliographers in the use of the collection or recommend a title to be added to the collection. They can also work on new computing techniques and software for learning; create and deliver sound, video, and text in digital format; and create Web pages.

The Jazz Age in Paris

“The Jazz Age in Paris: 1914–1940,” a national traveling exhibition organized by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES) and ALA, opened at the Elmer L. Andersen Library, University of Minnesota Libraries, with a reception featuring music and readings on February 1.

The exhibition brings to life in words, pictures, and music the early jazz movement in Europe, its American roots, and the exuberant cafe and cabaret musical culture of the City of Light between the two world wars. The exhibit offers portraits of artists and performers of the era, such as Josephine Baker and Django Reinhardt, as well as insights into how the American expatriate population in Paris and the European avant garde helped to shape a glamorous and influential cabaret culture in the 1920s and 1930s.

The exhibit was made possible through the support of the National Endowment for the Humanities. The original version of this exhibition was developed by the SITES and was made possible by Nissan North America. The exhibition is part of America’s Jazz Heritage, A Partnership of the Lila Wallace-Reader’s Digest Fund and the Smithsonian Institution.
African American exhibit opens at Texas A&M’s Cushing Library

A crowd of 300 attended the opening of an exhibit tracing the history and contributions of African Americans at Texas A&M University Saturday, February 3, at the university’s Cushing Memorial Library. The exhibit, “In Fulfillment of a Dream: African Americans at Texas A&M University, 1876-2000,” coincided with the biennial Black Former Students Reunion, Black History Month, and the start of events marking a yearlong celebration of the 125th anniversary of the university.

A time line, theme panels, and individual panels that highlight the people, contributions, participation, and achievements of African Americans at Texas A&M from 1876 to the present are included in the exhibit, which will be on display through June. Angus Martin, a reference archivist at the library, was curator of the exhibit and researcher for the project.

Translators and liaisons needed for standards

ACRL’s Information Literacy Competency Standards for Higher Education Task Force is working to facilitate the distribution and endorsement of the standards within the higher education community in the United States and around the world. To achieve this, the task force is looking for volunteers to translate or verify the translation of the standards into a language other than French, Japanese, Finnish, Romanian, Chinese, Spanish, or Russian. If you have language skills or are a member of a discipline-specific higher education association, please contact Barton Lessin, chair of the Information Literacy Competency Standards for Higher Education Task Force, at aa3327@wayne.edu.

Bring the ACRL Information Literacy Immersion program to your campus

Host institutions are sought for ACRL’s Institute for Information Literacy Immersion program. These five-day programs require housing, meeting rooms, audiovisual equipment, meals, and refreshment breaks for up to 100 participants. The programs

Texas A&M recognized the contributions of African Americans in its exhibit “In Fulfillment of a Dream: African Americans at Texas A&M University, 1876-2000.”
Support Library Legislation Day

Mark your calendars for the 27th Annual National Library Legislative Day to be held in Washington, D.C. on April 30 and May 1, 2001. This event is sponsored by ALA and other concerned organizations to raise awareness about the importance of federal funding for libraries.

These two days are significant to academic librarians because they provide a venue for librarians to meet with their congressional representatives and to explain how their actions and policy decisions affect academic institutions and their libraries. Considering the rapid changes that are occurring in our libraries due to evolving information technology, we must keep our representatives informed and educated of the implications of information policy on academic libraries.

On Monday, you will be briefed on general legislative issues important to libraries. And ACRL will sponsor an activity designed to brief you on issues particularly important to academic librarians.

For the past two years, the ACRL Board has sponsored a legislative luncheon with speakers and panelists for academic librarians who are participating in the Legislative Day activities. The 2001 ACRL luncheon and discussion will be held on Monday, April 30, and will focus on three important legislative issues: 1) reauthorization of the Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA), 2) the Uniform Computer Information Transactions Act (UCITA), and 3) the Children’s Internet Protection Act (CIPA). Later in the day you may caucus with your state delegation.

On Tuesday, you will join your state delegation and visit your congressional representatives, delivering your messages about library issues. Past experience of other academic librarians indicates that you may want to arrive in D.C. on Sunday to be ready for the full day of activities on Monday.

ALA has set aside a block of rooms at the Holiday Inn on The Hill. Call (800) 638-1116 and ask for the ALA rate. For more information about registration, access the Legislative Day Web site at http://www.ala.org/washoff/legday.html. You will also want to check with your state association legislative committee about teaming with them for visits to the congressional offices. If you plan to attend, contact Shannon Cary.

—Shannon Cary, ACRL director of research and special initiatives, scary@ala.org

Chronicle ad salutes libraries

This announcement is part of a media campaign approved by the ACRL Board to underscore to members of the higher education community the continued vitality and value of academic libraries.

The winners of this award exemplify the exceptional manner through which their library staffs collaborated to anticipate and respond in creative and innovative ways to the information needs of their institutions.

Winners for 2001 are:
• Austin Community College (community college division);
• Earlham College (college division); and
• University of Arizona (university division).

When it appears, please bring this announcement to the attention of presidents, provosts, deans, faculty, and other appropriate individuals and groups at your institution.

In the near future, your winning library may also be recognized nationally through an Excellence in Academic Libraries Award!
ACRL offers licensing workshop in San Francisco

With the rapid growth of databases, the number of licenses handled by libraries has grown exponentially. This change in scale means that it is even more important to have in place sound practices for tracking licenses, as well as policies and procedures that encourage or enforce compliance with the terms of the contract.

During the one-day preconference, "Navigating the Licensing Landscape," explore core issues to address in license negotiation, discuss selected problems and solutions in licensing language, and examine current hot issues. Learn negotiation techniques, share negotiation strategies, and discover if the current licensing model is sustainable as libraries attempt to manage an ever-increasing number of licenses and contracts. This preconference will be held prior to the ALA Annual Conference in San Francisco, on Friday, June 15, 2001. Speakers include Ivy Anderson, coordinator for Digital Acquisitions, Office of Information Systems, Harvard University Library, and Kimberly Parker, Electronic Publishing and Collections specialist, Yale University.

Sherman Alexie to speak at ACRL President's Program

Award-winning author, poet, and screenwriter Sherman Alexie will be the featured speaker at the ACRL President's Program, June 18, 2001, at 2:00 p.m. at the ALA Annual Conference.

Described as "one of the major lyric voices of our time" by the New York Times, Alexie is a prolific writer. Since 1992, he has authored seven books of poetry, several collections of short stories, two novels, and wrote the screenplay for the Sundance Film Festival's 1998 Audience Award and Filmmakers Trophy winner, Smoke Signals.

ACRL President Betsy Wilson is thrilled to have Alexie featured at her program: "I chose 'Community and Collaboration' as the theme of my presidential year because the library is the intellectual crossroads of the community—a house of stories preserving our memory and fostering communication and collaboration. As academic librarians, we must constantly work to look at our communities from new perspectives. Throughout his works, Alexie challenges his readers to see the world from a different point of view."

For more information about ACRL programs and the president's theme visit http://www.ala.org/acrl.

I say it's hierarchical and to hell with it!
BUSINESS & COMPANY RESOURCE CENTER

You'll like it from every angle

For a superior vantage-point in the areas of corporate finance, economics and marketing, business and academic researchers prefer the Business & Company Resource Center online database. In a single comprehensive database, users can efficiently research current, accurate and organized company and industry information, such as:

- CDA/Investnet insider buying and selling activity
- CDA/Spectrum major shareholders
- Company performance ratings
- Comprehensive financial overviews
- Current investment ratings
- Financial ratios
- First Call consensus estimates
- Investext®
- 20-minute delayed stock quotes

GLOBAL BUSINESS INFORMATION

Business & Company Resource Center provides global business coverage including company profiles, corporate chronologies and histories, industry rankings, products and brands, business journal news and analysis, stock prices and more. Whether researching new career opportunities, business case studies or competitive intelligence, your users will appreciate the quick and easy access to such dependable information.

FREE 30-DAY TRIAL

Please call your Gale Group Representative at 1-800-877-GALE to set up a free trial, or visit www.galegroup.com/BusinessRC for a guided tour. Outside the U.S. and Canada, send an e-mail to international@galegroup.com.
Perfect for Internet research.

eGems™ transforms the electronic research process. Now e-knowledge workers have a cutting edge tool enabling them to easily gather, save, organize, reference, and re-use valuable “gems” of information – while storing critical source information and reference data.

eGems is essential to researchers, writers, analysts, educators and students who need to work faster and smarter. Learn how at www.egems.com.

You’ll never lose track of valuable knowledge again!

Gemteq Software, Inc.
1450 Grant Ave. Suite 206, Novato, CA 94945
(415) 892-1913; Fax (415) 892-4238
www.egems.com