*Rather than establish on statewide salary minimum, some state associations have adopted a formula based on variables such as comparable salaries for public school teachers in each community, or the grade level of a professional librarian post. In these cases, you may wish to contact the state association for minimum salary information.

These recommendations apply only to public librarians.
Syracuse University Library seeks knowledgeable and innovative leaders who have a thorough understanding of the evolving role of research libraries in contemporary higher education and demonstrate the ability to articulate a vision for exemplary, state-of-the-art public services and technical services. Detailed position descriptions and desired qualifications are at http://libwww.syr.edu/information/employment/

Syracuse University, founded in 1870, is one of the largest and most comprehensive independent universities in the nation, and has received national recognition for advancing its vision of becoming one of the nation’s leading student-centered research universities. The Library is an active participant in this endeavor and is working with campus partners to develop a program of services that integrates print and digital resources. The University has just approved the Library’s plans for a major building expansion that will incorporate science collections and services with the humanities and social sciences.

AUL FOR PUBLIC SERVICES. As a member of the Library’s senior management team, the AUL for Public Services will exemplify collaborative, innovative, and responsible leadership, promoting a creative and pro-active approach to library service. The AUL will convey a coherent vision of the Library as central to the teaching and research functions of the University, and will direct the development, implementation, and management of programs and services that optimize use of library information resources. The successful candidate will be an agent for change and play a major role in redesigning library user services, initiating digital services and forwarding the Library strategic plan’s goals and initiatives. The AUL for Public Services will ensure the continuous improvement of the quality and effectiveness of Library services through ongoing user needs and service quality assessments. In concert with the Library’s two public services division heads, the AUL for Public Services will advance the development of the recently-established public services organizational structure. Reports directly to the University Librarian.

AUL FOR INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY AND TECHNICAL SERVICES. The AUL for Information Technology and Technical Services will develop, coordinate, administer and provide leadership for all technical services, including acquisitions, cataloging and database quality within Syracuse University Library. As a member of the Library’s administrative team, collaborates in strategic planning, policy formation, setting Library priorities, budget, and resource allocation. Develops, implements, and evaluates strategies to best carry out the Library’s mission in the areas of information technology and technical services. Administratively oversees the online integrated system (Endeavor’s Voyager), local network operations (300 workstations), open desktop applications, and ensures the functionality, quality and integrity of the online system. Reports directly to the University Librarian.

Salary and Benefits: Minimum salary $80,000. The University’s generous benefits package includes an 11% contribution to TIAA/CREF, health and dental plans, tuition remission, adoption assistance, insurance, and other work/life options and benefits.

Contact: Send letter of application, resume and names of three references, and a copy of a recently prepared publication or working document to: Search Committee for (name of position), Syracuse University Library, Office of Human Resources, Syracuse University, Syracuse, NY 13244-5300. Applications received by March 16, 2001 will receive first consideration.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER
Vassar College invites applications for the position of Special Collections Librarian. Reporting to the Head of Archives and Special Collections, the successful candidate will assist in various activities related to the management of a vibrant Special Collections Department. Incumbent will have primary responsibility for original and copy cataloging of rare books and printed materials as well as for developing rare book cataloging procedures and policies. In addition to technical services duties, the Special Collections librarian will assist the Head and other colleagues in the acquisition of new materials, reference requests, outreach and exhibit planning, preservation, and other department activities. Additional responsibilities will include some Main Library reference desk service and supervision of student workers. Qualifications: ALA accredited MLS, and one to three years experience in a Special Collections setting. Knowledge of AACR2, LCSH, LC classification, and USMARC required, preferably through at least one year of rare book cataloging experience. In addition, candidates should be familiar with OCLC, PERN, and automated library procedures. Excellent oral and written communication skills, superior energy and flexibility as well as the ability to interact effectively with a broad clientele, essential. Knowledge of Latin and western European foreign languages (either French, Italian, or German) also needed. Vassar College is a highly selective, coeducational liberal arts institution located in the scenic Hudson Valley in Poughkeepsie, New York. The Vassar College libraries house nearly one million volumes and maintain over 3,000 serial titles. The Special Collections Department houses more than 100 manuscript collections, including the papers of Elizabeth Bishop and Mary McCarthy, and more than 20,000 titles in the rare book collections. The Vassar College Libraries is in the last phase of a multi-phased construction project that has added approximately 30,000 square feet of new space and includes an extensive amount of renovation to existing space. A substantial portion of the new space is now occupied by an expanded Special Collections and Archives Department. Special Collections includes a new seminar and reading room as well as expansive space for staff work areas. The library project also includes new wiring and power, which will be extended throughout the buildings enabling the Libraries to bring new technologies to the desktop. The Princeton University Library's general collection includes about 6 million printed volumes, as well as significant numbers of microforms, scores and records, electronic databases, and journals. Its holdings within the Department of Rare Books and Special Collections are especially rich. The Library employs approximately 300 professional and support staff workers, as well as a large student and hourly workforce. Library operations are divided among 20 sites on campus, including a large central library. More information may be found at the Library's Web site: http://libweb.princeton.edu:2003/.

DESCRIPTION:

The Princeton University Library seeks an energetic and innovative librarian to serve as Population Research Librarian. The candidate selected will join the team at the newly opened Public and International Affairs and Population Research Library.

The Public and International Affairs and Population Research (PIAPR) Library includes the population research collection, which is composed of 35,000 monographs, 15,000 reprints, 4,500 microfilms, 12,000 pamphlets, 300 journals, and many electronic resources. The Princeton University Library has an overall collection of over 6 million volumes, 34,000 print journal subscriptions, and over 4,000 networked databases and electronic journals.

The Office of Population Research (OPR) at Princeton University has been preeminent in the field of formal demography, in particular the development of the model life tables and stable population models. In recent years, the research portfolio of OPR has been broadened and now reflects growing involvement in areas such as population and environment, poverty and child well-being, health and mortality, demography anthropology, social and economic demography, and statistical and mathematical demography. Princeton OPR faculty associates maintain strong ties with other social scientists in Princeton and throughout the world.

DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES:

Our ideal candidate for this position will be a librarian with strong skills in the social sciences and population studies, as well as enthusiasm for new methods of organizing, accessing, and delivering information and data resources. The Population Research Librarian will be responsible for managing ongoing collection development for the population research collection and, together with the staff of the PIAPR Library, will also provide specialized reference service to OPR as well as social science service to all faculty and students using the new library. The Population Research Librarian will also participate in library bibliographic and electronic resources instruction and in maintaining the PIAPR Library's Web site. The Population Research Librarian will work closely with the OPR Computer Group and with Library Data Services staff to help ensure that access to electronic OPR data collections is maintained through an appropriate approach to metadata and digital archiving.

The Population Research Librarian reports to the Head of the Public and International Affairs and Population Research Library and works collaboratively with all the staff and with librarians throughout the library system.

QUALIFICATIONS:
Required: An ALA-accredited MLS degree or equivalent combination of education and professional experience; demonstrated knowledge of relevant Web resources and html; experience with a variety of electronic library and data resources, including knowledge of electronic numeric research data and the techniques of acquiring, organizing, and maintaining it. Preferred: Knowledge of demography and population research topics and knowledge of medical, demographic, and government resources with emphasis on census and survey information.

BENEFITS:
Twenty-four vacation days per year, plus 11 paid holidays. Medical and other benefits.

SALARY AND RANK:
Dependent upon experience and qualifications.

NOMINATIONS AND APPLICATIONS:
Nominations and applications should be sent to the address below. Candidates should submit a letter of application, résumé, and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of three references. Review of applications will begin on April 1, 2001, and will continue until the position is filled.

DATA SERVICES SPECIALIST
Princeton University

The Princeton University Library's general collection includes about 6 million printed volumes, as well as significant numbers of microforms, scores and records, electronic databases, and journals. Its holdings within the Department of Rare Books and Special Collections are especially rich. The Library employs approximately 300 professional and support staff workers, as well as a large student and hourly workforce. Library operations are divided among 20 sites on campus, including a large central library. More information may be found at the Library's Web site: http://libweb.princeton.edu:2003/.

AVAILABLE: Immediately.

DESCRIPTION:
This position has two components. The major component is providing consulting services for undergraduates, graduate students, and faculty who use machine-readable data and various forms of related statistical analysis in a variety of academic disciplines, particularly economics, sociology, and politics. This includes retrieving/manipulating complex data from a variety of physical sources, including CD-ROMs and Internet archives; transferring data between platforms for use in multiple computing environments, including UNIX and Windows; providing extracts/tables based on electronic data, including government census/survey data and public opinion polls. The following duties are also important: providing assistance in choice, application, and interpretation of quantitative techniques; engaging in individual consultation, group instruction, and creation of documentation; evaluating and designing end-user systems and Web-based access tools; and developing data extraction routines in statistical packages and via Web CGI, Perl, Scripts, and other tools as appropriate. The second component is maintaining efficient operability of the Data and Statistical Services Lab, with duties that include installation, back-up and testing of new software, configuration of machines, removing obsolete/inappropriate files, and maintaining the hard disks. The Data Services Specialist reports to the Head, Social Science Reference Center. For more detail on Data and Statistical Services, consult: http://www.princeton.edu/~data/

QUALIFICATIONS:
Required: Bachelor's degree and background in computing and quantitative data analysis with expertise in at least one major statistical package (e.g., SAS, SPSS, Splus, or Stata).
Preferred: Advanced degree in a quantitative social science or equivalent experience and/or MLS from an ALA-accredited school; experience in using complex machine-readable data; programming ability; and familiarity with UNIX and microcomputer environments. Demonstrated ability and experience functioning successfully in a fast-paced environment with a strong service orientation.

BENEFITS:
Twenty-four vacation days per year, plus 11 paid holidays. Annuity program (TIAA-CREF), group life insurance, health coverage insurance, and disability insurance.

SALARY AND RANK:
Dependent upon qualifications and experience. Position may be a Librarian position or a Professional Technical Staff position.

Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the job is filled. Nominations and applications (resume and names, titles, addresses, and phone numbers of three references to be contacted) should be sent to:

DIGITAL SERVICES LIBRARIAN
Drake University, Cowles Library

DRAKE AND COWLES LIBRARY: Drake University is a comprehensive, selective university with an innovative student-centered curriculum that blends the liberal arts with professional training. Cowles Library has established itself as a campus leader in the development and deployment of knowledge resources in the electronic format. Building on a strong heritage of student-focused user services and collections, the library is developing and evolving both a policy context and an operational structure for the delivery of digital content. Over the next several years, the library will be pursuing a set of initiatives intended to more fully realize the potentials for using electronic resources.

RESPONSIBILITIES: The library seeks a proactive professional to initiate, lead, and undertake projects that make use of digital library resources and services, leading to their effective integration as part of the student learning experience. This individual will work in a highly collaborative environment with other librarians, focused on a close partnership with teaching faculty to achieve three primary goals: 1) assessment of emerging instructional needs; 2) development and delivery of new learning opportunities with technology and digital content; and 3) promotion of library services and resources. This individual will have the technical knowledge to create, design, and organize Web sites and other electronic tools for mediation of content and library services. This person will report to the Director, Operations and Systems, and will work closely with all of the library's operational teams. The position will also include a Collection Development assignment and limited service desk duty. Participation in professional activities is strongly encouraged and supported.

QUALIFICATIONS: Degrees: ALA-accredited MLS highly preferred; candidates holding an advanced degree in a related area such as Instructional Design, Information Science, or Computer Science accompanied by relevant library experience will also be considered. Required: Strong familiarity with library electronic resources; demonstrated knowledge of information use patterns of users and how its effective organization can facilitate teaching and learning; demonstrated knowledge of HTML, coding practices; experience in building database-integrated dynamic Web sites; command of site management and assessment tools and gateway/interface toolkits for access to bibliographic and other data via database interface mechanisms; ability to organize and implement projects; ability to work in a collegial, team-structured organization that promotes collaboration and the sharing of knowledge. Preferred: Undergraduate or second advanced degree in arts and sciences, humanities, or education; prior experience in library public or technical service.

SALARY: Minimum $40,000. Rank: Appointment rank and compensation will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. Available: Review of applications will begin March 15, 2001, subject to final budget approval.
