A deputy librarian at the University of Michigan, Ms. CONNIE R. DUNLAP has been appointed to head the Duke University library system. She will succeed retiring Dr. Benjamin Powell, librarian at Duke since 1946.

Ms. Dunlap holds the bachelor's and master's degree from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. Her undergraduate work was in geology and geography. She earned a master's degree in library science in 1952, and studied at the University of Paris in the 1967 summer term.

She has been associated with the Michigan library since 1943, when she worked as a student assistant in the circulation department. She became deputy associate director in 1972. Before that appointment, she was head of the graduate library.

At Duke, she will be in charge of Perkins Library on the West Campus, and satellite libraries on the East Campus and in several professional schools. The Duke library system has more than 2 million volumes and ranks among the top twenty in the nation in size.

Ms. Dunlap is a member of numerous professional library organizations and serves on the American Library Association Council.

She has written frequently for journals and serves as a consultant for several universities, among them Duke. She has been a consultant to the Library of Congress since 1972.
