ACQUISITIONS

• The American Antiquarian Society, Worcester, Massachusetts, has acquired a private collection of American book bindings from the estate of the late Michael Papantonio, a member of the society and a rare book dealer in New York City. The more than 1,000 books in the collection represent every period in the history of American bookbinding from 1666 to 1876.

The Papantonio collection was exhibited in 1972 and 1973 at the American Antiquarian Society, Pierpont Morgan Library, the University of Virginia, and Princeton and Cornell university libraries. The catalog of the exhibition has become a standard reference work for American bindings.

• In February Mercy College, located in Dobbs Ferry, New York, purchased the 60,000-volume library of Ricker College in Maine by submitting a high bid of $160,000.

The Ricker Library is the third college library that Mercy College has purchased in the past year. Earlier it had purchased the 39,000-volume library of Bennett College and the 30,000-volume collection of Mt. St. Mary College.

The three acquisitions bring the total holdings of the Mercy College Libraries to 270,000 volumes.

In announcing the purchase, Dr. Donald Grünewald, president of Mercy College, said, "We are constantly on the alert for opportunities to improve the quality and number of our holdings beyond our regular annually budgeted acquisition program."

• McMaster University, Hamilton, Canada, will receive custody of most of the records of McClelland and Stewart, Ltd., one of Canada’s major publishing houses. The collection includes the files of Jack McClelland, the current head of the firm.

• The works and working notes of Holling Clancy Holling, writer and illustrator of books for children and adults based on the lives and legends of native Americans, have been donated to the Department of Special Collections of the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) Library by the writer’s wife, Lucille Webster Holling.

The collection was initiated more than a decade ago, with the deposit of the first edition of Tree in the Trail together with the research materials and manuscripts that preceded the actual publication of the book. Four years after the death in 1973 of the writer-illustrator, Mrs. Holling began the series of gifts that will eventually place all of Holling’s works at the university.

Paddle-to-the Sea, complete with original watercolor paintings, drawings, designs, research notes, and letters, has joined Tree in the Trail in the collection. In addition, a number of first editions—including Rum Tum Tummy, Little Big Bye-Bye, Minn of the Mississippi, Sea Bird, and Pagoo—are in the collection.

• The library of the State University of New York (SUNY) College at Purchase has been given the art library of the late Thomas B. Hess by Hess’ children.

At the time of his death in July 1978, Thomas B. Hess was “Consultative Chairman” of the Department of Twentieth Century Art at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. He had been associated with Art News from 1946 to 1972, serving as the magazine’s editor from 1965 to 1972.

The collection comprises more than 1,700 items, including both monographs and exhibition catalogs. Strong in contemporary materials, the library includes most areas of visual art and design. This bequest follows a 1975 gift from Hess of an extensive collection of little magazines.

GRANTS

• The University of Chicago Library was among the twenty libraries that received grants from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare under Title II-C of the Higher Education Act.

Chicago will use its grant of $250,000 for two projects. The first is “to maintain the strength of library resources for original investigation of the history of civilization and of contemporary culture from Eastern Europe and the Middle East eastward to Japan.” The project will focus largely on acquisitions and processing.

The second project will be to improve access to the currently received scientific, technical, and medical serials of the University of Chicago Library, the John Crerar Library, and the Center for Research Libraries. This project will entail the construction of a machine-readable data base for an estimated 21,000 unique titles.

Upon completion of the data base, each of the three libraries will be able to identify gaps in its own collections that are covered in the collections of the other participating libraries, and they will be able to identify common deficiencies that need to be filled.

In addition, they will be able to set up a program of direct referral of interlibrary loan and photocopy requests. The bibliographic records created and the collections represented in the database will become available to the developing national serials data base and could constitute a principal segment of a national periodicals system.
MEETINGS

APRIL 28–MAY 3: The third annual National Information Conference & Exposition, sponsored by the Information Industry Association, will be held in Washington, D.C., at the Sheraton-Park Hotel.

MAY 3–4: Project LOEX, the national academic library clearinghouse located at Eastern Michigan University’s Center of Educational Resources, will sponsor the Ninth Annual Conference on Library Orientation/Instruction for Academic Libraries.

The conference will be held on the Eastern Michigan University campus and will feature speakers, discussions, and working sessions focused on the topic of keeping library user education programs in step with academic curriculum reform.

Registration is limited and by brochure only. Contact Carolyn Kirkendall, Director, Project LOEX, Center of Educational Resources, Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, MI 48197, to receive a brochure.

MAY 18–19: The University of Chicago Graduate Library School will hold its fortieth annual conference at the Palmer House in Chicago. The conference will commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the Graduate Library School.

The theme of the conference will be "The Role of Libraries in the Growth of Knowledge." Six speakers will address topics pertinent to this theme: Don R. Swanson, dean of the Graduate Library School, University of Chicago; Karl J. Weintraub, dean, Division of Humanities and professor of history, University of Chicago; Patrick Wilson, professor, School of Library and Information Studies, University of California, Berkeley; Eugene Garfield, president, Institute for Scientific Information, Philadelphia; Gordon R. MISCELLANY

* The George Washington University Library, Washington, D.C., has opened a Television News Study Facility that provides playback facilities and reference services for videotapes of television news broadcasts. The facility, which is supervised by the library’s audiovisual department, features a seventy-four-seat audiovisual classroom with large-screen projection as well as playback units for individual and small group viewing in both open and closed areas.

The library’s Vanderbilt Television News Archive Collection holds videotapes of all the weekday evening news programs of the three major networks broadcast since 1968. It also contains special network broadcasts such as the Watergate hearings and is now adding videotapes of weekend network news programs and special news events.

The Television News Study Facility also provides reference and referral service to other television news collections, including those held by the National Archives, the CBS, NBC, and ABC Archives, and the Museum of Broadcasting.

HERE IS SUBJECT-AND-AUTHOR ACCESS TO MORE THAN 400,000 ARTICLES IN THE BACKFILES OF 531 JOURNALS IN HISTORY, POLITICAL SCIENCE AND SOCIOLOGY.

CRIS — HISTORY, 1838-1974, in eleven hardcover volumes.
More than 180,000 articles from the backfiles of 234 History journals in the English language have been indexed together and published in 9 casebound cumulative subject index volumes and 2 cumulative author index volumes. Articles were assigned to one or more of 336 hierarchical subject categories, and then computer sorted by keyword under each category to give in-depth specificity.

CRIS — POLITICAL SCIENCE, 1886-1974, in eight hardcover volumes.
This set contains 6 cumulative subject volumes and 2 cumulative author volumes. Coverage includes more than 115,000 articles on such topics as Politics, Public Administration and International Relations, from the backfiles of 179 English Language journals. Articles were assigned to one or more of 95 hierarchical subject categories.

CRIS — SOCIOLOGY, 1895-1974, in six hardcover volumes.
From the retrospective collections of 118 English Language Sociology journals, some 110,000 articles have been indexed and their entries interfiled in five casebound folio-size cumulative subject volumes, and one cumulative author volume. Articles were assigned to one or more of 87 hierarchical subject categories.

Each Volume Contains an “Introduction & User’s Guide” By Evan Farber

AND NOW... more than 1 million BOOK REVIEWS which appeared in 472 of these same journals have been indexed by author and title in a separate fifteen-volume CRIS Index Set,

COMBINED RETROSPECTIVE INDEX TO BOOK REVIEWS IN SCHOLARLY JOURNALS, 1886-1974

Evan Farber, Librarian of Earlham College and author of the standard reference work, Classified List of Periodicals for the College Library, is the chief compiler of this new set. As he points out, “Our set will complement existing indexes of book reviews because the majority of its entries have never been indexed anywhere but in their own journals. "Book Review Digest," for instance, is retrospective to 1905 but quite weak in its coverage of scholarly journals. “Meanwhile, the new indexes which recently began to cover large numbers of scholarly journals are not retrospective.

“Therefore, this substantial gap in coverage can only be filled by an index which is both retrospective and more thorough in its coverage of scholarly journals—namely, our Combined Retrospective Index.”

CRIS, THE REFERENCE PREFERENCE OF THE RESEARCH MAJORITY,

... is now complete and at work in hundreds of undergraduate libraries in the United States and overseas.

By sheer weight of numbers, undergraduates constitute the "research majority" in academic libraries. By eliminating hundreds of unproductive searches in short-term or single-title indexes, CRIS sets have become the favorite reference tools of those students who want to build bibliographies fast.

"extremely popular with both students and faculty members"

Typical of comments from library users is this quote from Roy S. Barnard, Serials Librarian, Kearney State College Library, Kearney, Nebraska. In a letter dated January 30, 1979, he wrote "While at JUL (Joint University Libraries, Nashville, Tennessee) I became familiar with your CRIS-History and found it very helpful in my work with their History Department. Because it was so convenient and easy-to-use, it was extremely popular with both students and faculty members."
