Academic library collections
The number of items in library collections—including physical and electronic books, media, and serials—at Title IV degree-granting institutions in the United States is 2,513,160,802.

Rhodes Scholars
Nearly half of this year’s class of U.S. Rhodes Scholars are first-generation Americans. For the third consecutive year, a majority of the 32 winners come from minority groups.

Web browser market share
As of December 2019, the Chrome web browser dominated the browser market share worldwide at 63.62 percent. Safari came in second at 17.68 percent, followed by Firefox at 4.39 percent.

Streaming video
“As of May 2019, 134.2 million (56 percent) of U.S. adults streamed non-linear video to their TV set through an [I]nternet-connected device or smart television. Sixty-five percent of American homes have access to an enabled [I]nternet-connected device or smart TV. The typical U.S. adult streamer spends an average of just under one hour streaming non-linear content (video-on-demand, interactive, etc.) to their TVs in a regular day. That’s significantly less time than streamers spend with linear (scheduled) TV: two hours 42 minutes.”

Audiobook and podcast growth
“The audiobook and podcasting markets are growing far faster than the overall media and entertainment market. In 2020, Deloitte predicts, the global audiobook market will grow by 25 percent to $3.5 billion. [They also predict] that the global podcasting market will increase by 30 percent to reach $1.1 billion in 2020, surpassing the $1 billion mark for the first time.”

College student retention
“Slightly over half of U.S. college students graduate within six years, and nearly one in eight who start in any fall term will transfer by the following fall.”

Gary Pattillo is reference librarian at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. e-mail: pattillo@email.unc.edu