Adobe responds to ALA on egregious data breach
In October, ALA decried confirmed reader data breaches by Adobe and called for immediate corrective action to encrypt and protect reader information (the Adobe Digital Editions e-book reader application is used by thousands of libraries and many tens of thousands of e-book readers around the globe). Shortly after ALA released a statement responding to the data breach, Adobe acknowledged the error and confirmed that a software update to send data via secure transmission using HTTPS was made available on Friday, October 24, 2014. According to Adobe, users received an update notification via the auto-update mechanism built into the product, and the latest version of the product also can be downloaded.

ALA calls on Dept. of Education to include public libraries in early learning intervention model
ALA urged the Department of Education in a letter to include public libraries as early learning partners in the Proposed Requirements for School Improvement Grants. ALA specifically asked that the Department of Education include public libraries as eligible entities and allowable partners under the new intervention model that focuses on improving early learning educational outcomes. The ALA Office of Government Relations and the Association for Library Service to Children (ALSC) collaborated on the letter.

ALA hosts WIOA webinar
In October, more than 1,000 people participated in ALA’s webinar “$2.2 Billion Reasons to Pay Attention to WIOA,” an interactive webinar that focused on ways that public libraries can receive funding for employment skills training and job search assistance from the recently passed Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA). During the webinar, leaders from the Department of Education and the Department of Labor explored the new federal law. WIOA allows public libraries to be considered additional one-stop partners, prohibits federal supervision or control over selection of library resources, and authorizes adult education and literacy activities provided by public libraries as an allowable statewide employment and training activity.

Media interest in Washington
In October, The Washington Post highlighted the library community’s advocacy and lobbying efforts to protect the public from government intrusion or censorship in the feature-length article “Librarians won’t stay quiet about government surveillance.” The piece included quotes from Carla Hayden, Emily Sheketoff, and members of the Connecticut Four. It appeared both online and prominently in the Sunday Business section of the print edition of the paper.

Register now for ACRL 2015
Registration is now open for the ACRL 2015 conference to be held March 25–28, 2015, in Portland, Oregon. Themed Creating Sustainable Community, the conference features more than 300 carefully curated conference programs to help you stay at the forefront of the profession along with a variety of formal and informal opportunities to network with more than 3,000 of your peers and colleagues. The early bird registration deadline is February 13, 2015. Complete details, including registration and housing information, are available at http://conference.acrl.org/registration-pages-169.php.

Jazzy Wright is press officer of the ALA Washington Office, e-mail: jwright@alawash.org