THE PROBLEM: LONG-OUT-OF-PRINT DOCUMENTS HAVE NOW BECOME AVAILABLE

Now that the world's largest retrospective collection of U.S. Government documents published since 1789 has been moved to the National Archives, libraries, for the first time, can order facsimiles or microfilm copies of out-of-print U.S. Government documents published since 1789.

CHECKLIST '75 AND ITS NEW INDEXES WERE DUE TO BE UPDATED AND ORDER THE

The collection, of course, is GPO's Public Documents Library, long recognized as the most complete U.S. Government documents collection because of its statutory retention requirements. During 1972, all pre-1971 materials were moved to the Printed Archives Branch of the National Archives and Records Service, whose staff has just recently completed re-shelving them in Superintendent-of-Documents Classification order (the same arrangement used in the Shelflist card files). Meanwhile, the materials for 1971 and 1972 have recently been received and are now in the re-shelving process. The complete card catalogs and the later documents are still kept at GPO.

As GPO had kept the Public Document collection closed during its decades of custodianship, the sudden availability of facsimiles and microfilm copies under the usual National Archives sales terms must be considered an important new step toward the wider and more effective reference use of U.S. Government documents.

OF ACQUIRING
U.S. GOVERNMENT
PUBLICATIONS HAS BEEN SOLVED!

U.S. Government documents has been moved from superintendent of Documents Classification order—film copies of some 2 million previously out-of-print documents. The problem of acquiring U.S. Government documents has been solved.

DESIGNED TO HELP YOU IDENTIFY, SELECT, USE DOCUMENTS

It also means that the identification of documents by Su Docs Class Numbers has become more important than ever—and this of course, is where the Checklist '75 indexes will play their most important part.

Libraries having their own substantial documents collection arranged in Su Docs Class order, or those which find it convenient to order or borrow copies of documents from their local Regional Depository Libraries will, of course, also find the Checklist Indexes invaluable in retrieving their documents without having to order copies from National Archives.

The important point, however, is that their existing systems are now backed up by the potential availability of copies of even the oldest and rarest documents through the Public Documents Library.

Orders and inquiries to National Archives should be addressed to C. F. W. Coker, Chief, Public Archives Branch, National Archives & Records Service, Washington, D.C. 20408.

CUMULATIVE TITLE INDEX TO U.S. GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS 1789-1975

THE LARGEST AND MOST COMPREHENSIVE TITLE INDEX TO U.S. GOVERNMENT DOCUMENTS EVER PRODUCED IN ANY FORMAT.

Here is the long awaited single-alphabet listing of all titles contained in the shelflists of the Public Documents Library—the "Million Title" index to CHECKLIST OF UNITED STATES DOCUMENTS, 1789-1975.

Now, for the first time, librarians with documents collections of every size and type will be able to identify the Superintendent of Documents Classification Numbers for more than one million titles published by the U.S. Government over the past 186 years—and, also for the first time, be able to use these Su Docs Class Numbers to order facsimile or microfilm copies of specific documents from a centralized source.

The massive Cumulative Title Index can be used either by itself to order documents when the title, date, and Su Docs Numbers are sufficient identification; or in conjunction with Checklist '75, when it is desirable to learn complete bibliographic data on a publication prior to ordering copies (e.g. to find out the numbers of pages which will have to be copied @ 15¢ apiece, or to isolate specific numbers or parts of series).

In addition to the title, Su Docs Class Number, and the date of the information in the document, each entry also gives the microfilm reel number on which the full description can be found in Checklist '75.

Ask us about helping your library out of a bind.

The problems with bound periodicals never seem to end. As the demand for more information continues to grow, you need more and more space to store it. Then there are the added problems of mutilation and loss, too.

How do you get out of this bind? Ask us. University Microfilms International offers an answer to the problems libraries face...microform...a product that saves space in your library and money in your budget. In fact, microform requires up to 95% less storage space than bound periodicals, while greatly reducing the risks of mutilation and loss.

What does this mean for your library? Ask us. University Microfilms has now packaged all the advantages of microform into a program called the Serials Subscription Service. This remarkable service automatically ensures the latest volume of any given title as soon as it is available in microform, usually six months to a year following publication. The Serials Subscription Service offers over 7,000 titles, including many of the most popular titles, with guaranteed annual prices and only one invoice with your order for the entire year.

Ask us if you would like to learn more about the Serials Subscription Service and how it can become part of your library management program. Just ask us. We'll be happy to send you our catalog and information on the Serials Subscription Program. Just ask Serials Marketing Manager, University Microfilms International, 300 North Zeeb Road, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106.

- The University of Illinois Graduate School of Library Science will sponsor a four-week course at the Newberry Library in Chicago from Monday, July 11, through Friday, August 5, on "The Conservation of Research Library Materials." The course has been offered in alternate years since 1971 and will be taught by Paul N. Banks, conservator of the Newberry Library since 1964.

Designed for those who are responsible for the physical care of rare, research-type books and manuscripts, this course emphasizes the considerations involved in making decisions about the care of collections. It is not a workshop course in restoration or book repair. The class will meet at the Newberry Library, 60 W. Walton St., Chicago, for four hours a day, four days a week, with field trips on the fifth day.

Tuition will be $88, and the course carries one unit of graduate credit.

For an application for admission and for information on housing, write Richard F. Casper, University of Illinois Office of Continuing Education, 300 W. Golf Rd., Mt. Prospect, IL 60056, (312) 255-3320.

- The University of Illinois Graduate School of Library Science will offer a course on "Medical Literature and Reference Work" in the 1977 summer session from Monday, June 20, through Friday, July 22. The instructor will be Professor Lorraine Hirschfeld, head of information services, Library of the Health Sciences, University of Illinois Medical Center, Chicago.

Detailed consideration will be given to bibliographical and reference materials in the health sciences (dentistry, pharmacy, public health, etc.) including government documents, computerized retrieval systems, and audiovisual materials. Course assignments will include visits to nearby medical and scientific libraries, hands-on experience with Medline, and practical problems utilizing typical reference sources.

The course carries one unit of graduate credit, and the tuition will be $88. Housing is available in dormitories on the medical center campus. For further information or an application blank write Richard F. Casper, Office of Continuing Education, University of Illinois, 300 W. Golf Rd., Mt. Prospect, IL 60056, (312) 255-3320.

PUBLICATIONS

- Arabic Historical Writing, 1974: An Annotated Bibliography of Books in History from All Parts of the Arab World, compiled and annotated by Fawzi Abdulrazak's, intern (Arabic specialist) in the Middle Eastern Department of the Harvard College Library, recently has been published by the Harvard University Library. Mr. Abdulrazak's Arabic Historical Writing, 1973 appeared last year, and compilation of a volume for 1975 is currently under way.

- The resources of 290 Virginia libraries are described in A Directory of Virginia Library Resources, compiled by the Task Force on Library Resources of the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia. The entry for each library consists of a description of identified resources, including collection size, subject strengths, and special collections, as well as a statement of service policies and means of access. Use of the directory is enhanced by three indexes: an index of institution or corporate names, an index of special collections (including many manuscript and nonprint holdings), and an index of subjects. It is particularly valuable for the many U.S. government agency libraries that are listed. The 245-page directory is available free of charge from: John E. Molnar, Library Planning Coordinator, State Council of Higher Education for Virginia, 700 Fidelity Building, 5th and Main Streets, Richmond, VA 23219.

FAXON'S new SCPE Service enables libraries to monitor price increases over a three-year period by taking price data directly from their unique personal history files stored in Faxon's computer. SCPE is ideal for department heads and subject specialists who can make a thorough review of subscription costs as they relate to budgets prior to annual renewal.

Serials control information is also available from Faxon's computer on either punched cards or magnetic tape. Libraries with data processing capabilities will find our input precise and time-saving.

Faxon makes automation work for you... personally.
The Canadian Library Association's microfilm program has been very active since November 1947. Since its beginning, 232 Canadian newspapers have been filmed spanning the years from 1752 to 1928. Also 27 periodicals, journals, and studies have been microfilmed.

In early 1973, there was some indication that provincial studies were about to assume a place of importance in Canadian scholarship. For this reason, a microfilm program entitled Early Provincial Government Documents on Microfilm was begun.

The first phase of the provincial document filming has now been completed and covers the period from 1867 to 1900. The microfilm includes legislative assembly and council journals, which recorded the business of each session; sessional papers (departmental reports); statutes and revised statutes (laws); and debates and proceedings. Phase 2 (1901–1920) is now in progress.

The list of provincial government documents is available from the Microfilm Program of the Canadian Library Association, 151 Sparks St., Ottawa, Ontario. Prices quoted are for complete provincial sets. However, individual reels may be purchased for $30 each.

The Continuing Library Education Network and Exchange (CLENE) has published a final report of its activities during the year of its funding by the U.S. Office of Education. From June 15, 1975, to June 30, 1976, CLENE operated under a planning grant from the Office of Libraries and Learning Resources, Title II-B fund from the Higher Education Act. The year of planning included four major objectives: creation of a permanent administrative structure for CLENE; establishment of a dues and fees structure; development of operational mechanisms required for the implementation of CLENE; identification of funding sources and preparation of proposals. The final report summarizes what CLENE has achieved in light of these four objectives.

Some of the major achievements are:
1. A computer-based information network that gives information, in print or on-line, about continuing education opportunities— their content, location, time, objectives, costs, leadership.
2. A directory of CLENE members that helps to find the leaders with the expertise, experience, and education to support continuing education programs.
3. Two CLENE Assemblies, with published proceedings, which have sought to develop innovative solutions to national concerns related to continuing education.
4. The CLENExchange newsletter to keep readers current on what's happening in continuing education circles.
5. A continuing, multiprofessional, annotated bibliography that gives users a quick way of pinpointing resources to assist them in solving their problems.
6. A network of persons concerned about continuing education from a wide array of organizations and institutions with whom to share ideas and creative approaches to continuing education issues.
7. Concept papers on planning and teaching continuing education courses and on evaluating programs.

Included in the report are an evaluation of the significant aspects of the program as presented by the Panel of Review and Evaluation; a program review and planning structure for CLENE as prepared by the 1975/1976 ad hoc board of directors for the newly elected 1976/1977 board of directors; conclusions and recommendations by the project staff. An appendix includes selected items of particular relevance generated during the project year.

The final report is available from the CLENE Office, Box 1228, 620 Michigan Ave., N.E., Washington, D.C. 20064 at a cost of $2 for members and $3 for nonmembers.

Selected Sound Recordings of American, British, and European Literature in English is a 140-page publication with 1,365 main entries of cassette tapes and disc records from 53 sources. The University Libraries at the University of Toledo announce the availability of this catalog, which is divided into 12 subject areas including Elizabethan drama, European drama, and American poetry. Unique is the fact that the titles of individual poems are listed for each recording. The compiler, Dr. Homer E. Salley, director of the Technological Media Center, has also reported purchasing information for each item: author, title, order number, distributor's name and address. Playing time or duration is given for about 85 percent of the entries. When available, dates are given for the recording and for the original publication of the work.

The recordings are of five types: dramatizations of plays and novels, including highlights; readings by the author; readings by professional talent (e.g., James Mason, Judith Anderson); discussions of literary works by teachers and critics (e.g., Gilbert Highet, Philip Young); sound tracks from films.

The publication is available for $10. Send orders with payment to: Technological Media Center, University of Toledo, 2801 W. Bancroft St., Toledo, OH 43606.

- R. R. Bowker Company announces simultaneous publication of all seven volumes of the 13th edition of American Men and Women of Science edited by Jaques Cattell Press. Publication date was October 29, 1976, marking 70 years since the inception of the one-volume first edition of the biographical directory of active scientists of North America. Reflecting on certain pivotal events in the development of three companies now part of the same corporate family, Jaques Cattell Press, R. R. Bowker Company, and Xerox Corporation, the year 1906 appears to have been an auspicious one.

- Peter Martin Associates has announced the publication of the first edition of Canadian Book Review Annual and Canadian Fiction: An Annotated Bibliography.

Canadian Book Review Annual was conceived and prepared under the editorial direction of Dean Tudor, chairman of the Library Arts Department, Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, Toronto. CBRA provides reviews by librarians and subject specialists of all Canadian English-language trade titles published in 1975, including 1975 reprints of titles originally published before 1966, selected federal and provincial government publications, and English translations of French-Canadian titles. The concise 250-word reviews are organized by number within subject categories and provide complete ordering and bibliographical information (author, title, publisher, place and date of publication, collation, price, and ISBN).

Says Dean Tudor, "CBRA will be the basic selection aid for school, college, and university librarians, not only in Canada but abroad."

Canadian Fiction: An Annotated Bibliography fills the need for a comprehensive bibliographical guide to Canada's literature. Every novel and short story collection (including translations of French-Canadian titles) is listed with a concise descriptive annotation. Each author entry lists out-of-print titles, critical and biographical studies, as well as relevant multimedia material. An invaluable index groups fiction titles under the major thematic areas of Canadian literature.

- Information Resources Press announces a new abstracting and indexing periodical, EIS: Key to Environmental Impact Statements. It indexes environmental impact statements by subject content, geographic area involved or affected, and by originating agency or organization. For further information contact: IRP, 2100 M Street N.W., Suite 316, Washington, D.C. 20037.

ELDRED R. SMITH has been appointed director of university libraries and professor at the University of Minnesota, according to a recent announcement issued by University President C. Peter Magrath. The appointment was effective in December. Mr. Smith has been, for the past four years, director of university libraries and professor at the State University of New York at Buffalo.

At Minnesota, Mr. Smith will have direct responsibility for the administration of the Twin Cities campuses library system, which has combined holdings in excess of three million volumes, as well as a substantial manuscript and archives collection. In addition to these rich resources, the University of Minnesota Libraries are particularly known for the pioneering role that they have played in significant cooperative developments (the Midwest Interlibrary Center, MINNITEX, and CONSER) and in academic library governance.

A graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, Mr. Smith earned a M.A. in English from that institution, as well as a MSLS from the University of Southern California. He has held positions in several academic libraries, including those at Long Beach State University, San Francisco State University, and the University of California at Berkeley. Before going to Buffalo, Mr. Smith was associate university librarian at Berkeley. He has taught at the University of Washington and at SUNY-Buffalo.

Mr. Smith has been active in a variety of professional organizations. Currently vice-president/president-elect of the Association of College and Research Libraries, he has previously served as chairman of its Academic Status Committee and its University Libraries Section. He is a member of the board of directors of the Center for Research Libraries. Mr. Smith has been president of the Librarians' Association of the University of California, as well as chairperson of the Western New York Library Resources Council, the Five Associated University Libraries, and the State University of New York Council of Head Librarians. He presently chairs a joint ARL/ACRL committee charged with developing university library standards.
