ACRL Professional Development Programs in Atlanta

By Mattye Nelson

Professional Development Officer, ACRL

ACRL will offer ten preconferences during the ALA Annual Conference in Atlanta. These activities provide academic librarians an opportunity to enhance their skills; acquire new knowledge, techniques; and strategies; update existing competencies; and exchange information with peers. Unless otherwise indicated all preconferences will be held on Friday, June 28.

Cultural Diversity and Higher Education: BI in a Multicultural Environment

ACRL’s Bibliographic Instruction Section will offer a preconference designed for librarians facing the challenges of an increasingly diverse user population. Four speakers will address the challenges and opportunities of multiculturalism, money and politics, gender differences, and the power of information literacy. Breakout sessions focusing on working with international, Chicano, high-risk, and minority students, locating and evaluating multicultural information sources, and the importance of a diverse staff will enable participants to share practical ideas and information. Speakers: James Neal, Indiana University Libraries; Janice Koyama, University of California-Berkeley; Sherron Kenton, Emory Business School; Mary Huston, Texas Woman’s University, School of Library and Information Science. Fees: ACRL Members $145; non-members $180.

The Practical Librarian: Managing Collections and Services in College Libraries

ACRL’s College Libraries Section will offer a preconference designed for college librarians serving student enrollments under 2,000. Topics ranging from student employees to marketing the library and from serials to faculty relations will be discussed. Enrollment limited to first 120 registrants. Speakers: Evan Farber, Earlham College; Michael Kathman, St. John’s University; and others. Fees: ACRL members $65; $75 non-members. Time: 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. Fees: ACRL members $100; non-members $150. CEU credit: .7.

Keeping the Facts in Artifacts: Conserving the Physical Evidence of Special Collections Materials and Its Impact on Research

This three-day conference offered by ACRL’s Rare Books and Manuscripts Section will be held June 25-28, in Chapel Hill, North Carolina. The preconference will focus on the following topics in special collection materials and its impact on research: The Uses of Physical Evidence; Conservation: In-House or Contracting Out; Cooperative Programs: Some Pros and Cons; Research Stemming from the Examination of Physical Evidence; Current and Historical Approaches to Special Collections’ Care. Speakers: Barbara Buckner Higginbotham, Brooklyn College; Margaret Child, Washington D.C.; Carolyn Clare Morrow, Harvard University; Janet Paris, University of North Carolina, Michael Winship; University of Texas at Austin. Setting: The Triangle Area (Chapel Hill, Durham, Raleigh and the surrounding counties) located in the heart of the scenic North Carolina piedmont, serves as the cultural, governmental and technological center of the state. One of the fastest growing areas in the country, the population of the three counties which make up the Triangle is approaching 700,000. Home to four major universities (University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Duke University, North Carolina Central University, and North Carolina State University), the Triangle offers a diverse array of music, dance, theater, crafts,

Excellence through Cultural Diversity:
Accreditation Workshop

ACRL’s Historically Black College and University Libraries Committee will hold a preconference at Clark-Atlanta University on the problems par icular to Historically Black Colleges and Universities facing the accreditation process. The workshop will also offer practical information on preparation for accreditation with speakers from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and from libra rians and administrators who have recently com pleted the process. Fees: ACRL members $50; non-mem bers $85.

Professional Development/Continuing Education Courses

Time Management for Academic Librarians Learn practical time-management techniques and increase your productivity. This class will iden ify frequent time-management problems, establish goals and priorities, and review time-management strategies. Each participant will leave with an individual plan and specific activities that will ad dress your time-management needs. Faculty: Thomas McNally, Loyola University. Time: 6:00–10:00 p.m. Fees: ACRL members $75; non-members $110. CEU credit: 4. Limited to 40 registrants.

Financial and Cost Accounting Learn standard financial terminology to im prove your communication with your administra tion. This course will provide the background and methodology needed to communicate effectively.
Skills taught include: presenting rationally documen ted presentations, reading and understanding the three standard financial statements used by organizations, understanding the underlying prin ciples of financial accounting, and calculating the cost of library services using a proven methodolo gy. Faculty: Julie Virgo, The Carroll Group. Time: 9:00 a.m.–5:00 p.m. Fees: ACRL members $100; non-members $150. CEU credit: .7. Limited to 40 reg istrants.

Accommodating Change through Training and Education
This class will discuss change and the role librari ans have as agents of change within their organiza tions. Change can be a divisive issue among staff coping with rapid changes in technology, manage ment, and facilities and it is important to learn how to cope effectively with these changes. Particular emphasis will be placed on the staff development activities within a library that can foster change.
Faculty: Pat Weaver-Meyer and John Cochenour, University of Oklahoma. Time: 9:00 a.m.–5:00 p.m.
Fees: ACRL members $100; non-members $140.
CEU credit: .7.

New Technologies, New Services: Communicating Our Needs to the Campus Community
How can upper level library administrators “sell” new services and technologies to their administra tors in a positive way? How can libraries foster a win-win relationship with their administrations, instead of giving the impression that the library is always looking for another hand out? Can libraries demonstrate that they are a contributor to the overall image of the campus, that a strong library with state of the art services and technologies can actually help recruit and retain both students and faculty?
The purpose of this ACRL Continuing Educa tion Course is to show that library administrators can develop good selling and negotiation skills which can be used to enhance library services. The program will address the needs of administrators of both public and private institutions and those of varied sizes.

Speakers and panelists will include: Ellen Waite, Loyola University; Peggy Sullivan, Northern Illi nois University; Bill Potter, University of Georgia; Melanie Dodson, RLG Consultants; Lance Query, Northwestern University, and others. Program planners are: Betsy Baker, Northwestern Univer sity; Diane Graves, University of Illinois at Chi cago; Tom McNally, Loyola University; and Beth Sandore, University of Illinois. Time: 9:00 a.m.– 5:00 p.m. Fees: ACRL members $100; non-mem bers $150. CEU credit: .7.
Measuring Academic Library Performance

A how-to-course featuring Measuring Academic Library Performance: A Practical Approach. Learn how to make the most of this new manual to measure the effectiveness of your library's services.

Faculty: Librarians who served as advisers to the authors during the development of the manual.

Time: 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Fees: ACRL members $100; non-members $150. CEU credit: .7.

Cultural Diversity in the Academic Library

Panel discussion on the issues of recruitment and retention of diverse staff and methods. There will also be a discussion of methods to maintain sensitivity to diversity in both the staff and student population. Faculty: Kathleen Bethel, Northwestern University; Rosie Albritton, University of Illinois; Rosemary Stevenson, University of Illinois (moderator); and others.

Time: 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Fees: ACRL member $100; non-members $150. CEU credit: .7.

No refunds or cancellations after June 1, 1991. Please note: In the event that an ACRL-sponsored activity is canceled, the Association of College and Research Libraries cannot be responsible for cancellation or change charges assessed by airlines or travel agencies for registrants.

A certificate of completion for each professional development course will be issued. Every successful completion of 10 hours of continuing education is equal to one Continuing Education Unit (CEU). ACRL maintains a CEU record for each participant.

The Collector’s Bookshelf

by Joseph Raymond LeFontaine (333 pages, 1990), is an interesting yet frustratingly limited compilation of checklists designed for collectors of genre fiction. Arranged by author, The Collector’s Bookshelf provides the correct titles and original date and place of publication of 33,000 books written by 931 authors, many of whom are known by various pseudonyms. This book is interesting for its simplicity in providing a chronological list of the monographs generated by popular authors, for whose oeuvre one might otherwise have to sift through one or more prolix and pedantic perpetrators of literary criticism. It is frustrating because many authors are missing. I was pleased to find a complete list of the very elusive works of Marie Corelli and Luis P. Senarens, but puzzled at the absence of Ambrose Bierce, Ian Fleming, Mika Waltari, and Jack Kerouac. Favorited genres include crime and mystery fiction, westerns, romance and gothic novels, children’s and juvenile fiction, science fiction, fantasy, horror, and novelists who tend to be responsible for movies. A companion volume, The Collector’s Bookshelf Value Guide, provides a current (October 1990) market value for every title listed in the main volume. Copies are available for $69.95 from Prometheus Books, 700 E. Amherst St., Buffalo, NY 14215. ISBN 0-87975-605-5.

Collectors and Curiosities: Paris and Venice, 1500-1800, by Krzysztof Pomian (348 pages, February 1991), examines the history of collecting in early modern Europe and describes the myriad treasures—from paintings and antiques to religious relics—that found their way into the private collections and public museums of the time. Pomian argues that shifts in collectors’ tastes can be seen as a sign of wider and more profound changes in mentality and can be analyzed in terms of a conflict between aesthetic and historical sensibilities. The motives and methods of collectors of natural history will especially interest historians of science. The book costs $44.95 and may be ordered from Basil Blackwell, Inc., Three Cambridge Center, Cambridge, MA 02142. ISBN 0-631-15480-6.
