The sixth International BOBCATSSS Symposium was held January 26-28, at the National Széchenyi Library situated on the hills above the river Donau in Budapest, Hungary. The five previous symposia were arranged and organized by students from the Hogeschool van Amsterdam, but in 1998, this challenge was taken over by students from the Royal School of Library and Information Science in Copenhagen, Denmark.

BOBCATSSS is an acronym for an association of European educational institutes in Library and Information Science. The name is derived from the names of towns where the founding institutes are situated (Budapest, Oslo, Barcelona, Copenhagen, Amsterdam, Tampere, Sheffield, Stuttgart, and Szombathely). Since its founding, the Institutes of Kharkiv in Ukraine, Moscow in Russia, Sofia in Bulgaria, and Tallinn in Estonia have joined the association. BOBCATSSS aim is to cooperate, to exchange educational and research assistance, and to build a network beneficial to students and lecturers.

The theme of BOBCATSSS '98 was "Shaping the Knowledge Society," with paper presentations made on topics subsumed by human resource development, democracy and information literacy, quality, knowledge management, and future roles for the information specialist.

Approximately 275 scholars and students from almost 30 countries and three different continents were in attendance at the symposium. Presentations were grouped according to the topics subsumed by the overall theme of the "Knowledge Society" and were presented simultaneously throughout the three days of activity.

Assessment and the learning society
Mary Rowlatt, head of Information Services at the Essex Libraries in Chelmsford in the United Kingdom, spoke very directly to the symposium theme by pointing out that "... little has been written about the Knowledge Society, and even less [about] the future role of libraries and librarians in such a society." She went on to point out, by way of contrast, that the concept of Knowledge Management has generated a significant amount of the debate and body of literature and is beginning to be taken seriously in the business world.

She then described how the Essex Libraries were reposturing themselves to react to the challenges of the Knowledge Society. Speaking to a different facet of the same subject, Maria Burke of the Department of Information and Communications of Manchester Metropolitan University, in the UK, spoke about the assessment of professional capability beyond the millennium. She described a course module that has been developed in her department to help students consider their own professionalism. This module takes (continued on page 285)

About the author
Lester J. Pourciau is director of libraries at the University of Memphis; e-mail: pourciau@msuvx1.memphis.edu
Apply for ACRL preconferences

Learn more about advocacy, instruction, or special collections by attending one of ACRL’s three preconferences at the ALA Annual Conference in Washington, D.C. Details about the following preconferences may be found on the ACRL Web page at http://www.ala.org/acrl/annconf.html and in the March 1999 C&RL News:

- “Learning to Teach: Workshops on Instruction” sponsored by ACRL’s Instruction Section, June 26, 1998.
- “Getting Ready for the Nineteenth Century: Strategies and Solutions for Rare Book and Special Collections Librarians,” sponsored by ACRL’s Rare Books & Manuscripts Section, June 23–26, 1998.

BOBCATSSS ’99

BOBCATSSS ’98 was a very well organized symposium, and credit for this must be given to the BOBCATSSS team. Plans are already well underway for BOBCATSSS ’99, which will take place in Bratislava on the Danube River in Slovakia. It is being organized as a project of students from the Fachhochschule Darmstadt and the Hochschule fuer Bibliotheks- und Informationswesen Stuttgart. Further information can be obtained at http://www.fh-darmstadt.de/BOBCATSSS/conf99.htm.